DIFFERENCES ARISE OVER AN EXTRA SESSION

COOLIDGE AND ADVISERS IN AN ARGUMENT

SAME STARTED WHEN SENATOR SMOOT SAID SESSION WAS SET FOR OCT. 15

SECRETARY HOOVER AND FLOOR LEADER TILLSON DRAWN INTO ARGUMENT

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Rapid City, S. D., Juy 22.—Differences have arisen between President Coolidge and some of his closest republican advisers over whether there should be an extra session of congress about October 15 for enacting flood relief legislation.

The affair started in Washington when Chairman Smoot of the senate finance committee announced after conferring with the president that Mr. Coolidge would summon congress at that date. A few hours later Mr. Coolidge denied he had made up his mind on the subject.

Now Secretary of Commerce Hoover and Rep. John Q. Tillson, republican floor leader in the house, have been drawn into the argument. Hoover favors the extra session and Tillson strongly opposes it. Both urged their opinions to the president during their recent visits here.

Smoot, who visited the president Thursday, told the United Press he feared for the outcome of important legislation unless an extra session is called. His taxation reduction program and special senatorial election contests are going to be thrown before congress in a deadlock on the opening day and this may jeopardize flood control measures which have not yet been framed.

"In the first place," Smoot said, "congress in the closing hours of the last session failed to enact a $20,000,000 deficiency appropriation bill and it must be passed in the first order of business. With the presidential election coming on next year members of the house and senate will be anxious to get away from Washington as early as possible for the conventions and I am convinced congress should be started at least a month earlier this fall."

Smoot laid down a complete $300,000,000 tax reduction program which he will submit to his finance committee when it meets with the house ways and means committee to plan the new tax bill. The Smoot plan includes:

$150,000,000 reduction of corporations tax from 13½ to 12 per cent.

$37,000,000 elimination of taxes on theater admissions and club dues.

$50,000,000 reduction in passenger automobile taxes by cutting present three per cent rate to 1½ per cent.

General scaled reduction on income taxes between $15,000 and $60,000 a year.

Smoot expects to get the bill through before March 15 in order to affect payments on this year's taxes.

SACCO, VANZETTI CONTINUE FASTING IN THEIR PRISON

Boston, July 22.—(UP)—The serving of food to Nicola Sacco and Baltolomeo Vanzetti, condemned hunger-strikers facing death in the electric chair for a seven-year-old crime, remained merely a formality today.

For the 14th time since the joint voluntary fast began, Charlestown state prison attaches this morning brought food to the separate cells of the doomed men, and for the 14th time, the fasters ignored it.

This was the sixth day of the hunger strike which started early last Sunday, presumably as a protest against Governor Alvan T. Fuller's "secret" investigation on the internationally famous case.

GASOLINE TANK EXPLODES ON COAST GUARD BOAT

Tuckerton, N. J., July 22.—(UP)—A gasoline tank on the U. S. coast guard cutter C. G. 2316 exploded today.

Petty Officer Ernest Leary, 28, was thrown overboard by the explosion. He was rescued by other guardsmen, but was said to be in a serious condition from burns and other injuries. Two other guardsmen were slightly injured.

"Individual Woman Has No Faith in Her Sister"

GOV. FULLER VISITS HUNGER STRIKING PAIR

Boston, Mass., July 22.—(UP)—Governor Alvan T. Fuller, who is making a personal investigation of the world famous Sacco-Vanzetti murder case, visited the hunger striking men at Charlestown state prison today.

Sacco and Vanzetti had just begun the sixth day of their voluntary fast—presumably a protest against the "secrecy" of the governor's inquiry—when the governor arrived.

The executive was accompanied into the presence of the doomed men by Warden William Hendry.

LAST WILL OF KING FERDINAND MADE PUBLIC

DISINHERITS PRINCE CAROL AND DISTRIBUTES ROYAL ESTATE

DOCUMENT URGES PEOPLE TO SUPPORT THE REGENCY NAMED

By ASRA BERKOWITZ

Bucharest, July 22. — Although Prince Carol of Roumania has indicated he may claim the kingship he renounced, the late King Ferdinand showed in his last testament, will and codicil that he did not expect his son to assume the throne.

The codicil disinheriting Carol was drawn up Jan. 11, 1926. Under its terms, Michael, Carol's son, became the heir to the crown. The document, read yesterday in Pelisor Palace urged the people of Roumania to support the regency until the young King Michael assumes the actual reins of government.

The original will left Carol the royal palaces, but because of his renunciation of the throne he will receive only the money and securities to which he is legally entitled as a son of Ferdinand.

Queen Marie, the widow, inherits the royal palaces.

A country estate and home is bequeathed to each of the daughters, except the queen of Jugo-Slavia, who will receive her share in money and securities.

A substantial sum was left to charity.

ESCAPED CONVICT IS CAPTURED

Philadelphia, July 22.—(UP)—C. L. Walls, 34, escaped convict from Richmond, Va., was captured today after an exciting chase through noonday crowds in the vicinity of City Hall square, in which several shots were fired.

Walls was arrested by Detective Sergeant Organ, of Richmond, who came here in search of R. A. Shopoff, realtor, of that city, who is said to have jumped $4,000 bail while awaiting trial on charges of embezzling $40,000.

LEAPS OFF BRIDGE INTO MISSISSIPPI

St. Paul, July 22.—(UP)—Herman Plotke committed suicide here today by leaping from the Wabasha street bridge into the Mississippi river.

A note was found in a coat left on the bridge which stated financial losses caused the act.

SAYS HE GOT HARSH WORDS FROM OPERATOR

St. Louis, Mo., July 22.—(UP)—Hassh words from a telephone operator, instead of the return of his nickel on an uncompleted call, will form the basis of a five-cent legal suit, according to Sigmund Bass, St. Louis attorneys.

Bass, who claims to have lost the nickel in a telephone slot said he would bring suit against the company August 4, not because "of the coin I lost but for the annoyance of the harsh words, 'line is busy'."

Attack Upon Monroe Doctrine By Venezuelan Quickly Squelched by Labor Head Wm. Green

GIVEN REBUKE AT PAN AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR

DELEGATE DENOUNCED "AMERICAN INTERVENTION" IN NICARAGUA

Washington, July 22.—(UP)—An attack upon the Monroe Doctrine by Venezuelan Delegate Rafaelo Martinez before the Pan-American Federation of Labor Conference today was peremptorily stopped by President William Green of the American Federation of Labor, presiding officer, who ruled Martinez out of order and rebuked him.

Speaking on a resolution in behalf of Haitian workers calling on the meeting to investigate the killing of a worker by an American marine in Port Au Prince this week, Martinez called for drastic action, declaring that since Senator King, democrat, Utah, had not been allowed to investigate conditions in Haiti, there was little chance of any other investigation succeeding.

Martinez denounced "American intervention" in Nicaragua, saying that if the Pan-American labor body did not take a stand against the Monroe Doctrine, those participating in the deliberations here would have nothing to show to the Latin-American countries.

Martinez was interrupted by Green, who said the question before the body referred to Haiti, not to Nicaragua. Martinez leaped to his feet and shouted that "the criminal exploitation of Latin-American countries began back in the days of Monroe."

Martinez, however, was silenced by a stinging rebuke from Chairman Green. "The Pan-American Federation of Labor is not a clearing-house for all the political grievances that may obtain in all Latin-American countries," he said. "We must pursue a dignified and careful policy when we engage in denunciation and criticism. There is always the danger of going to extremes, and injuring the very cause we desire to help."

The Haitian slaying resolution was adopted, Martinez refraining from voting.

FIVE SECTION HANDS KILLED WHEN ENGINE HITS GASOLINE CAR

Cannon Falls, Minn., July 22.—(UP)—Five section hands were killed near here late Thursday when their gasoline work car was struck by a Chicago, Great Western engine.

The dead were Ottis Halling, 45, Red Wing; Jack Olson, 50; Ivan Wenz, 20; Ben Eide, 29, and Axel Johnson, all of Cannon Falls.

Eide and Johnson died at a hospital in Red Wing where they were taken by a special train. The others were instantly killed.

200 KILLED IN PALESTINE QUAKE

Washington, July 22.—(UP)—The latest official report on the Palestine earthquake casualties of last week were given in a state department cable received today as 200 killed, 731 injured and 1,000 houses destroyed. In Transjordania 69 persons were reported killed and 102 injured.

CHAUFFEUR KILLS WIFE IN PRESENCE OF MANY SHOPPERS

Troy, N. Y., July 22.—(UP)—In the presence of hundreds of shoppers, Bert Amond, 32, a chauffeur, shot and killed his wife in a department store here today as she was purchasing a pair of gloves. He sent five bullets into her body.

MARTINEZ IS RULED OUT OF ORDER

QUICKEST MURDER TRIAL EVER HELD IN MISSISSIPPI

Jackson, Miss., July 22.—(UP)—After the quickest murder trial ever held in Mississippi, Walter Burley, negro, confessed slayer of Mrs. O. S. Reese and her sister-in-law, Martha Reese, was hanged here today.

In his dying statement, Burley advised members of his race to "keep their hands off white women."

The negro repeated before going to his death the confession made shortly after his arrest. He slipped into the Reese farm home after the owner had left, shot the two women while Mrs. Reese's children looked on and assaulted Miss Reese, he admitted.

The Jackson court house was converted into a veritable military arsenal for Burley's trial. Guardsmen manned machine guns behind barbed wire entanglements to be ready for a mob attack.

O. S. Reese, husband and brother of the murdered women, witnessed the execution.

CASE OF LEE MAY BECOME INTERNATIONAL

NORWEGIAN IS CHARGED WITH MURDERING TWO WOMEN

NORWEGIAN CONSUL ASKS HE BE PROTECTED FROM ASSAULTS

New York, July 22.—(UP)—The case of Ludwig Lee, Norwegian, charged with murdering and dismembering the bodies of Miss Sarah Brownell and Mrs. Alfred Bennett in Brooklyn, today threatened to become an international incident.

Norwegian Consul General Gerard sent a telegram to Secretary of State Kellogg at Washington asking him to take some action to protect Lee from assaults of police.

Attorneys for Lee charged he was badly beaten by police when he was "questioned" for 48 hours. His body was badly marked with bruises and abrasions, the attorneys charged, but permission to have photographs of the marks taken was refused by Brooklyn courts.

The attorneys also protested Lee's detention for 100 hours after his arrest before he was arraigned. Detention of any pisoner for more than 24 hours without arraignment is a misdemeanor, it was said.

OLE BAKER FINDS WAY TO BEAT HIS LANDLORD

St. Paul, July 22.—(UP)—Ole Baker found a way to beat the landlord today.

When John Blomquist entered his "vacant" house in the residential district he narrowly averted stepping upon four baby Bakers.

Upon further investigation Blomquist learned that Mr. and Mrs. Baker were homeless and picked out his Valley street house to live in.

The owner granted the Bakers permission to remain until the father found employment or was given aid by a charitable institution.

AMERICAN STEAMER SINKING IN INDIAN OCEAN, REPORTED

Washington, July 22.—(UP)—The American steamship Huong is sinking 10 miles oc Kasaragog, India, after rescue of the entire crew by a passing steamer, according to consular reports to the state department today.

BREATHES BY MEANS OF A RUBBER TUBE

TUBE EXTENDS FROM ONE LUNG THROUGH AN INCISION IN HIS BACK

2-YEAR-OLD ALBERT KATZEN OF CHICAGO WARDS OFF DEATH

Chicago, July 22—(UP)—Breathing by means of a rubber tube which extends from one lung through an incision in his back, two-year-old Albert Katzen today held off the death that was threatened so menacingly for the past forty-eight hours.

Doctors say he is improving despite his inability to breathe normally and despite their inability to force oxygen into his infected lungs.

He has been ill for more than three weeks with bronchial pneumonia but it was not until Wednesday that his lungs became so infected that the artificial respiration tube was made necessary.

The youth was taken ill 22 days ago. Two weeks ago doctors found it necessary to force oxygen through the boy's mouth and into his lungs.

Wednesday infection set in and the muscles contracted to such an extent that the oxygen flow no longer could be forced into the youth's body. His temperature increased to 105 degrees. His respiration and pulse indicated that death was near.

Five times, according to Dr. Sheppard Remington, the boy was on the brink of death—fighting for breath.

The youth's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Katzen, implored physicians to take any steps necessary to sustain life in their son. Dr. Remington said only an operation and the artificial breathing tube would help. He was given permission to do this.

A small incision was made in the boy's back, just behind the lungs. Parts of the ribs were removed and the small rubber tube inserted. One end went flush against one of the boy's lungs while the other extends out of the back.

Oxygen may be forced through this tube when it becomes necessary, doctors say.

At the hospital this morning it was said that the boy—who has been breathing through this artificial passageway for almost forty-eight hours—was apparently improving.

WOLF ESCAPES FROM ZOO AND INJURES CHILD

Middletown, N. J., July 22.—(UP)—A wolf escaped from the Twin Brook zoo here last night and mauled and bit Thomas Kinsley Holton, three years old, before servants were able to shoot it.

Thomas was playing on the lawn with another child when the wolf seized him and dragged him several feet, shaking him and inflicting deep bites in his left leg and left side. He will recover.

Approve Reorganization Plans of Milwaukee R. R.

Chicago, July 22.—(UP)—Reorganization plans for the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad were approved today by the United States court of appeals with only one modification to the plan as endorsed by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson.

The appeal had been taken by the Jamieson group of minority stockholders who feared that the reorganization plans would "freeze out" the minority group.

The opinion handed down today modified the plan so that the Jamieson group was given a reasonable length of time in order that they might enter hte reorganization and obtain the same treatment as the majority stockholders.

TRAFFIC JUDGE CAUGHT BREAKING SPEED LAW

Chicago, July 22.—(UP)—A motorcycle patrolman whirled along South Parkway and finally caught up with a speeding motorist.

"What's your name and give your excuse to the judge," the officer asked.

"But I am the judge," the man replied. It made little difference to the officer and the man was arrested.

Later it developed the alleged speeder was Judge A. W. Summer, visiting magistrate who is attached to the municipal court—traffic division.

CLAIM COLONY WAS NOT PLACE OF IMMORALITY

12 YOUNG WOMEN AWAIT OPPORTUNITY TO GIVE TESTIMONY

DEFENSE ATTORNEYS SEEK TO PREVENT DISSOLUTION OF HOUSE OF DAVID

St. Joseph, Mich., July 22.—(UP)—Twelve young women today awaited an opportunity to testify that the House of David religious colony was not a place of immorality as state witnesses have contended.

The twelve young women are among the members of the colony who are being presented by defense attorneys in an attempt to prevent dissolution of the now famous religious camp as the state asks.

The first of the young women members to be presented was Miss Gladys Jeffries. She took the stand late Thursday and testified that to her knowledge there was no trace of immorality in the colony. State witnesses had contended that King Ben Purnell, leader of the group had forced himself upon young women members as part of the ritual of the order.

Walter Hill, evangelist for the colony, was also on the stand yesterday and announced in tones, which would have fitted well in a sermon, that the millenium was to come in the year 2,000. He said the 144,000 chosen Israelites and those of cleansed blood would inherit the earth and peace would reign.

He defended the action of King Ben in hiding from the state for four years—thus escaping arrest on the charges brought by young women members—with the statement:

"Jesus went into hiding to escape his persecutors."

EXCITING NIGHT ON EXCURSION STEAMER AT BOSTON

Boston, July 22—(UP)—After an exciting night aboard the excursion steamer Rose Standish, which had grounded on the rock near an unlighted buoy in the outer harbor, about 1,000 passengers were landed here today.

The passengers were delegates to the Kappa Sigma national fraternity conclave here.

Accident involving the Rose Standish was the seventh ship mishap in Massachusetts waters within 36 hours.

YANKEE FREIGHTER ABANDONED IN ARABIAN SEA

Bombay, July 22.—(UP)—The freighter Homestead, U. S. Shipping board vessel operated by the Roosevelt company, was abandoned in the Arabian sea 15 miles off shore today. Its crew of 36 under Captain Frank Chapman was rescued by the Burma Oil company steamer Aungban, which was carrying them to Bombay.

The Homestead sailed from Calcutta July 12 and was to have taken on a cargo at Bombay to be brought to New York. Fires were believed to have caused the trouble.

"WOMEN TURN AROUND AND EMPLOY MEN"

PREFER THEM, FEARING WOMEN WILL NOT MAKE GOOD

JEAN S. CAVERS ADDRESSES BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONAL WOMEN'S CLUBS

Oakland, Calif., July 22.—(UP)—Womankind has faith in itself but the individual woman has no faith in her sister, Jean S. Cavers, of Columbus, O., told the convention of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs today.

"Women who profess to be feminists," she said, "turn right around and employ men in preference to women because they have a secret fear the woman won't make good."

"Where she is as efficient as a man I believe the other woman should give her a chance."

Whether voluntarily or otherwise, the public subscribes to the same secret opinion, Miss Cavers declared.

"There is still a feeling in the public mind that if a woman fails, it is because she is a woman," she said. "No one ever thinks a man fails because he is a man."

Miss Charlotte Williams, Washington, D. C., addressing the convention, deplored the lack of vocational schools for girls.

36 STICKS OF DYNAMITE FOUND NEAR RESIDENCE

Kansas City, Mo., July 22.—(UP)—Complete mystery surrounds the discovery of thirty-six sticks of dynamite, ingeniously bound together with electric fuses and a switch, which was found lying in the weeds near the country home of U. S. Guyer, representative in congress from the second Kansas district, near here. Attached to the explosive was a series of incoherent notes.

Apparently the package had not been concealed in the weed patch long, officers said. The author of the notes explained that he was sentenced to die in an eastern prison but had escaped and that a price was on his head, dead or alive. Another note urged the payment of $3,000 at once, although there was no salutation nor signature on the notes. "If you attempt to shoot me, I'll blow us both to pieces," another note read.

Guyer asserted that he knew of no reason why anyone should seek his life and said he had received no threatening letters. Police are searching diligently for the author of the notes.

LOST PUBLICITY IS VALUED AT $100,000

Los Angeles, July 22.—(UP)—Lost publicity was valued at $100,000 in a damage suit on file here today by Peter Howard, alias "Peter the Hermit," 75 year old recluse.

With flowing beard and bare feet, Peter came down out of the hills seeking financial vengeance because, he claimed, he was not given a promised part in the photoplay "Resurrection."

Additionally, Peter asks for $30,000 salary which he asserts he would have earned.

Peter aspired to play the lead which involved "flaming love" scenes, opposite Dolores de Rio, film beauty, but he was displaced by the more youthful Rod La Rocque.

He claimed photographs of himself were used as "publicity stunts" in connection with the play.

JOHN A. LANE, MILL CITY REALTOR, SENT TO PRISON

Stillwater, Minn., July 22.—(UP)—John A. Lane, Minneapolis real estate dealer, today started serving up to 10 years in the state penitentiary for embezzlement. He was sentenced in Minneapolis Thursday after admitting shortages of more than $100,000 in clients' funds.

The sentence was passed on a charge of embezzling $1,000 from Mrs. Hannah E. Baxter of Minneapolis.

He has been ill for more than three weeks with bronchial pneumonia but it was not until Wednesday that his lungs became so infected that the artificial respiration tube was made necessary.

The youth was taken ill 22 days ago. Two weeks ago doctors found it necessary to force oxygen through the boy's mouth and into his lungs.

Wednesday infection set in and the muscles contracted to such an extent that the oxygen flow no longer could be forced into the youth's body. His temperature increased to 105 degrees. His respiration and pulse indicated that death was near.

Five times, according to Dr. Sheppard Remington, the boy was on the brink of death—fighting for breath.

The youth's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Katzen, implored physicians to take any steps necessary to sustain life in their son. Dr. Remington said only an operation and the artificial breathing tube would help. He was given permission to do this.

A small incision was made in the boy's back, just behind the lungs. Parts of the ribs were removed and the small rubber tube inserted. One end went flush against one of the boy's lungs while the other extends out of the back.

Oxygen may be forced through this tube when it becomes necessary, doctors say.

At the hospital this morning it was said that the boy—who has been breathing through this artificial passageway for almost forty-eight hours—was apparently improving.

WOLF ESCAPES FROM ZOO AND INJURES CHILD

Middletown, N. J., July 22.—(UP)—A wolf escaped from the Twin Brook zoo here last night and mauled and bit Thomas Kinsley Holton, three years old, before servants were able to shoot it.

Thomas was playing on the lawn with another child when the wolf seized him and dragged him several feet, shaking him and inflicting deep bites in his left leg and left side. He will recover.

Approve Reorganization Plans of Milwaukee R. R.

Chicago, July 22.—(UP)—Reorganization plans for the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad were approved today by the United States court of appeals with only one modification to the plan as endorsed by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson.

The appeal had been taken by the Jamieson group of minority stockholders who feared that the reorganization plans would "freeze out" the minority group.

The opinion handed down today modified the plan so that the Jamieson group was given a reasonable length of time in order that they might enter hte reorganization and obtain the same treatment as the majority stockholders.

TRAFFIC JUDGE CAUGHT BREAKING SPEED LAW

Chicago, July 22.—(UP)—A motorcycle patrolman whirled along South Parkway and finally caught up with a speeding motorist.

"What's your name and give your excuse to the judge," the officer asked.

"But I am the judge," the man replied. It made little difference to the officer and the man was arrested.

Later it developed the alleged speeder was Judge A. W. Summer, visiting magistrate who is attached to the municipal court—traffic division.

CLAIM COLONY WAS NOT PLACE OF IMMORALITY

12 YOUNG WOMEN AWAIT OPPORTUNITY TO GIVE TESTIMONY

DEFENSE ATTORNEYS SEEK TO PREVENT DISSOLUTION OF HOUSE OF DAVID

St. Joseph, Mich., July 22.—(UP)—Twelve young women today awaited an opportunity to testify that the House of David religious colony was not a place of immorality as state witnesses have contended.

The twelve young women are among the members of the colony who are being presented by defense attorneys in an attempt to prevent dissolution of the now famous religious camp as the state asks.

The first of the young women members to be presented was Miss Gladys Jeffries. She took the stand late Thursday and testified that to her knowledge there was no trace of immorality in the colony. State witnesses had contended that King Ben Purnell, leader of the group had forced himself upon young women members as part of the ritual of the order.

Walter Hill, evangelist for the colony, was also on the stand yesterday and announced in tones, which would have fitted well in a sermon, that the millenium was to come in the year 2,000. He said the 144,000 chosen Israelites and those of cleansed blood would inherit the earth and peace would reign.

He defended the action of King Ben in hiding from the state for four years—thus escaping arrest on the charges brought by young women members—with the statement:

"Jesus went into hiding to escape his persecutors."

EXCITING NIGHT ON EXCURSION STEAMER AT BOSTON

Boston, July 22—(UP)—After an exciting night aboard the excursion steamer Rose Standish, which had grounded on the rock near an unlighted buoy in the outer harbor, about 1,000 passengers were landed here today.

The passengers were delegates to the Kappa Sigma national fraternity conclave here.

Accident involving the Rose Standish was the seventh ship mishap in Massachusetts waters within 36 hours.

YANKEE FREIGHTER ABANDONED IN ARABIAN SEA

Bombay, July 22.—(UP)—The freighter Homestead, U. S. Shipping board vessel operated by the Roosevelt company, was abandoned in the Arabian sea 15 miles off shore today. Its crew of 36 under Captain Frank Chapman was rescued by the Burma Oil company steamer Aungban, which was carrying them to Bombay.

The Homestead sailed from Calcutta July 12 and was to have taken on a cargo at Bombay to be brought to New York. Fires were believed to have caused the trouble.

"WOMEN TURN AROUND AND EMPLOY MEN"

PREFER THEM, FEARING WOMEN WILL NOT MAKE GOOD

JEAN S. CAVERS ADDRESSES BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONAL WOMEN'S CLUBS

Oakland, Calif., July 22.—(UP)—Womankind has faith in itself but the individual woman has no faith in her sister, Jean S. Cavers, of Columbus, O., told the convention of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs today.

"Women who profess to be feminists," she said, "turn right around and employ men in preference to women because they have a secret fear the woman won't make good."

"Where she is as efficient as a man I believe the other woman should give her a chance."

Whether voluntarily or otherwise, the public subscribes to the same secret opinion, Miss Cavers declared.

"There is still a feeling in the public mind that if a woman fails, it is because she is a woman," she said. "No one ever thinks a man fails because he is a man."

Miss Charlotte Williams, Washington, D. C., addressing the convention, deplored the lack of vocational schools for girls.

36 STICKS OF DYNAMITE FOUND NEAR RESIDENCE

Kansas City, Mo., July 22.—(UP)—Complete mystery surrounds the discovery of thirty-six sticks of dynamite, ingeniously bound together with electric fuses and a switch, which was found lying in the weeds near the country home of U. S. Guyer, representative in congress from the second Kansas district, near here. Attached to the explosive was a series of incoherent notes.

Apparently the package had not been concealed in the weed patch long, officers said. The author of the notes explained that he was sentenced to die in an eastern prison but had escaped and that a price was on his head, dead or alive. Another note urged the payment of $3,000 at once, although there was no salutation nor signature on the notes. "If you attempt to shoot me, I'll blow us both to pieces," another note read.

Guyer asserted that he knew of no reason why anyone should seek his life and said he had received no threatening letters. Police are searching diligently for the author of the notes.

LOST PUBLICITY IS VALUED AT $100,000

Los Angeles, July 22.—(UP)—Lost publicity was valued at $100,000 in a damage suit on file here today by Peter Howard, alias "Peter the Hermit," 75 year old recluse.

With flowing beard and bare feet, Peter came down out of the hills seeking financial vengeance because, he claimed, he was not given a promised part in the photoplay "Resurrection."

Additionally, Peter asks for $30,000 salary which he asserts he would have earned.

Peter aspired to play the lead which involved "flaming love" scenes, opposite Dolores de Rio, film beauty, but he was displaced by the more youthful Rod La Rocque.

He claimed photographs of himself were used as "publicity stunts" in connection with the play.

JOHN A. LANE, MILL CITY REALTOR, SENT TO PRISON

Stillwater, Minn., July 22.—(UP)—John A. Lane, Minneapolis real estate dealer, today started serving up to 10 years in the state penitentiary for embezzlement. He was sentenced in Minneapolis Thursday after admitting shortages of more than $100,000 in clients' funds.

The sentence was passed on a charge of embezzling $1,000 from Mrs. Hannah E. Baxter of Minneapolis.

HEART TAG DAY

Volunteers of America Appeal for Funds Here Tomorrow

"Have a Heart" and "Help an Unfortunate" will be the appeal of many of Brainerd young folks on Saturday, who will be about the streets with their little red heart tags asking for your quarter, dime or half dollar. This is the annual appeal in behalf of Mrs. Booths many activities in this state.

Mrs. Booth's year's of prison work are generally known, for the Volunteers of America is perhaps the foremost of all agencies in systematic spiritual work in behalf of the men behind prison walls and their oftimes destitute families.

The organization also maintains hope hall and farm camps and employment bureaus for discharged or paroled men.

The merchants have signified their willingnes to cooperate and as an incentive as well as a reward for their good efforts, are offering some attractive prizes to the youthful workers, the first a camera by H. P. Dunn drug store; second, a hat by Husted and Scallen; third, a bar pin by C. L. Burnett, jeweler; fourth, pair silk hose, O'Brien Mercantile Co.; fifth, a box of candy by Johnson's Pharmacy; sixth, a box of fine stationary by E. F. Gates.

Those who do not win a prize but who secure at least $3.00 for their tags will receive a pass good for one movie show at the Lyceum treatre, given by the manager of this theatre.

Purchasers are requested to display their tags to avoid second appeals. The committee hopes every one will have two hearts on Saturday, your own and one of the Volunteers of America to help someone else.

HIGHWAYS ARE GENERALLY GOOD

Minnesota trunk highways are generally good, according to the weekly condition report issued by the State Highway department today, but a few are becoming "washboardy" due to heavy summer traffic. Heavy rains locally, especially in the northwestern part of the state, have done some damage, but this will be repaired by maintenance crews in a few days.

Pavement on No. 1 is now open from St. Paul to Duluth on Sundays and evenings, but is closed from Wyoming to Harris on week days, from 7 a. m. to 6 p. m., due to shoulder grading. This will continue at least one week more.

Detailed reports on conditions on the so-called Babcock roads marked with the yellow star follow insofar as they refer to the Brainerd Lake Region:

T. H. No. 2—Duluth, Brainerd, Wadena, Detroit Lakes and Moorhead—260 miles—Duluth, paved—Carlton, good—Tamarack, fair—McGregor, good, fair—Aitkin, good—Brainerd, good—Wadena, fair, detour, fair—Detroit Lakes, fair—Hawley, detour, fair—Moorhead.

T. H. No. 18—Elk River, Milaca and Brainerd—102 miles—Good.

T. H. No. 19—Brainerd, Walker and Cass Lake—93 miles—Good.

T. H. No. 27—St. Cloud, Little Falls and Brainerd—62 miles—Paved.

Turtle and Turtle Dove

The origin of the word "turtle" is unknown. It is an old Anglo-Saxon word and was applied to doves long before it was to reptiles. Webster's International dictionary suggests that it may have been of imitative origin and originally referred to the noise made by doves.

Electricity's Property

Electricity is said to require "more brains to make and less brains to use than any other commodity."

HEART TAG DAY

Volunteers of America Appeal for Funds Here Tomorrow

"Have a Heart" and "Help an Unfortunate" will be the appeal of many of Brainerd young folks on Saturday, who will be about the streets with their little red heart tags asking for your quarter, dime or half dollar. This is the annual appeal in behalf of Mrs. Booths many activities in this state.

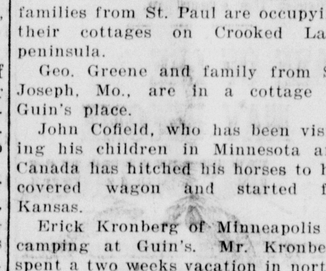

Mrs. Booth's year's of prison work are generally known, for the Volunteers of America is perhaps the foremost of all agencies in systematic spiritual work in behalf of the men behind prison walls and their oftimes destitute families.

The organization also maintains hope hall and farm camps and employment bureaus for discharged or paroled men.

The merchants have signified their willingnes to cooperate and as an incentive as well as a reward for their good efforts, are offering some attractive prizes to the youthful workers. the first a camera by H. P. Dunn drug store; second, a hat by Husted and Scallen; third, a bar pin by C. L. Burnett, jeweler; fourth, pair silk hose, O'Brien Mercantile Co.; fifth, a box of candy by Johnson's Pharmacy; sixth, a box of fine stationary by E. F. Gates.

Those who do not win a prize but who secure at least $3.00 for their tags will receive a pass good for one movie show at the Lyceum treatre, given by the manager of this theatre.

Purchasers are requested to display their tags to avoid second appeals. The committee hopes every one will have two hearts on Saturday, your own and one of the Volunteers of America to help someone else.

HIGHWAYS ARE GENERALLY GOOD

Minnesota trunk highways are generally good, according to the weekly condition report issued by the State Highway department today, but a few are becoming "washboardy" due to heavy summer traffic. Heavy rains locally, especially in the northwestern part of the state, have done some damage, but this will be repaired by maintenance crews in a few days.

Pavement on No. 1 is now open from St. Paul to Duluth on Sundays and evenings, but is closed from Wyoming to Harris on week days, from 7 a. m. to 6 p. m., due to shoulder grading. This will continue at least one week more.

Turtle and Turtle Dove

The origin of the word "turtle" is unknown. It is an old Anglo-Saxon word and was applied to doves long before it was to reptiles. Webster's International dictionary suggests that it may have been of imitative origin and originally referred to the noise made by doves.

LIONS ARE HOSTS TO LUMINARIES

George B. Anderson Assistant Secretary General of Association Explains Program

ACTIVITIES, THREE-FOLD

Visitors Hearty in Praise of Breezy Point, Location of 1928 District Convention

The Brainerd Lions club, at its regular meeting Wednesday night, was host to several distinguished guests, when representatives of the Lions International made an official visitation to the local club. Included in the party were George B. Anderson, assistant secretary-general of the International association; Mort Newcomb, deputy district governor and president of the Minneapolis Lions; G. R. Strayer, vice president of the Owatonna club, and L. S. Olson, also of the latter den.

The Lions International has planned for this year a three-fold program, said Mr. Anderson, concentrating its efforts on Industrial, Educational, and Children's work, in which activities each club is expected to give its major attention. So well has this program been received in many localities that a number of towns have asked that clubs be started in their communities, to enable them to take an active part in this work.

In explaining the workings of the International, Mr. Anderson likened it to a giant clearing house, in which progressive, successful ideas and accomplishments of the subordinate clubs are interchanged, making it possible for one community to profit by activities practiced in another locality. Experts are employed to work out plans for such activities as any particular club may desire to put into practice, and all clubs are urged to make the most of this highly efficient service.

"Often we dislike and in some instances even hate individuals in our communities, all because we do not know them," said Mr. Anderson. Lions clubs are making it possible for its members to know each other as well as their fellow citizens better, and according to the speaker nothing promotes the growth of a community more than harmony and friendly cooperation in all civic enterprises. "Have a service club, not just a luncheon organization, active in every worthy civic cause, and eager to take a prominent part in the promotion of community welfare. You will be surprised at the accomplishments and at the growth of your own organization."

Mr. Anderson told the club that all officers of the International are giving generously of their time and talents without compensation of any kind, other than the satisfaction derived from being of real help to every community included in the realm of Lionism. All that is asked in return is the hearty cooperation of each club, and its willingness to be of real service in its own particular community.

Mort Newcomb was introduced by I. C. Strout, president of the local club, to speak on the subject, "How Minneapolis Lost the 1928 District Convention." The district deputy responded by saying that what had been his city's loss was to be Brainerd's gain, and that Minneapolis handed over the coming big event to Brainerd with the promise of 100 per cent cooperation in making the next convention an outstanding milestone in the history of Lionism in this district.

Minneapolis Lions have plans under consideration for a big "Pep" meeting to be held in that city early this fall, to which all presidents, past presidents, secertaries and past secretaries are to be invited, as well as representatives from the International. The meeting will have for its object the closer unity and cooperation of the various clubs, together with a program for increasing the service of Lionism throughout the district.

This Minneapolis meeting will be held on a Friday, with business sessions morning, afternoon and evening, the delegates to be guests of the Mill City Lions at a university football game the next day.

Messers. Strayer and Olson brought greetings from the Owatonna club, and told of activities being successfully carried out by the Lions in that city. They promised their hearty support to the Brainerd convention, as well as to the International and district programs.

R. E. Wyett, chairman of the banquet committee, reported on the festivities held at Breezy Point last week, when the Brainerd Lions were hosts to the Little Falls den. The joint meeting was exceptionally successful, and did much to further the cooperative spirit between the two clubs.

President Strout announced his standing committees for the coming year and asked each chairman to meet with his committee and draw up a program to be that committee's contribution to the club's activities during the next twelve months.

Dr. G. I. Badeaux added to the pleasure of the evening by rendering several solos, and the Lions club orchestra surprised the den by appearing again after quite an interval of inactivity.

Following the regular meeting the International officers met with the board of directors of the local club, where plans for the coming year's work were carefully gone over together with discussions on the district convention to be held in Brainerd and Breezy Point in 1928.

Following the meeting Messrs. Strout, Geist, and Wyett, drove to Breezy Point with George B. Anderson and Mort Newcomb where they were most cordially received by Captain and Mrs. W. H. Fawcett who showed them through the main lodge, the cottages and their private home.

Messrs. Anderson and Newcomb were enthusiastic in their praise of the location for next year's fifth district convention.

JERICHO OUTING AT LUM SUNDAY

Attendance Expected to be Over 6,000 With Good Picnic Weather Predicted

ALL DAY ACTIVITIES

Merry-go-Round, Feris Wheel and Bird Circus Included in Entertainment

Autos will pour into Brainerd Sunday where all trails will lead to Lum Park, the mecca of thousands of holiday seekers who will enjoy the second annual Jericho Outing on the shores of Rice Lake where an all day entertainment program will be caried out.

Three thousand people are expected from out of the city, in fact from all parts of central Minnesota while the attendance from Brainerd will swell the number to over 6,000.

The Jericho Outing Association has made plans this year to surpass its first outing held at the south end of Gull Lake last year which was attended by over 4,000 people.

As early as 10 a. m. the activities will commence and from that time until late in the evening there will be something doing all the time.

In addition to the regular program of events there will be a merry-go-round, a ferris wheel and a bird circus, all passed on and okeyed by the local Park Board.

The weather man promises good picnic weather for the affair.

One of the features of the day will be the baseball game between the I. O. O. F. team of Brainerd, of the local league and the I. O. O. F. team of St. Louis Park, Minneapolis. As there is no location for the playing of a fast baseball game at the grounds the game will be played at the N. P. grounds at 3:30 p. m.

The program will include speeches by prominent I. O. O. F. grand lodge officals, a large picnic dinner and supper, music by the Brainerd Boys Concert band, music by members of the Staples lodge, kittenball game between Brainerd, Ironton and Pine River teams, horse shoe pitching, diving contests, swimming races, and a fancy diving exhibition by Dixie Thompson.

The principal speaker of the occasion will be Grand Master E. E. Peck who will address the gathering in the morning on "Fraternity."

Strange Beast Terrorizes

A mysterious beast that walks on its hind legs is terrorizing natives in the Kenya colony of India. It has killed a number of blacks, and the "Nandi bear," as they call it, is inspiring more fear than a lion. No white hunter has seen it, but Kanya's acting game warden, who examined the tracks, agrees that it walks on its hind legs. It has been described as being a strange species of lion, or even gorilla, but natives believe it is a hitherto unknown member of the hyena family that climbs trees. One report is that it has cream-colored hair, long tapering feet, with huge claws, and long nose covered with hair to the tip. It is said to roam only at night.

True Perfumes

To distinguish perfume truly take the stopper from each crystal flagon and for a moment move it gently back and forth until the preservative alcohol has evaporated, and only the essence remains. It is then one is greeted by the subtle call of the pure "odeur," and the fragrance of one's choice becomes unmistakable.

You will be surprised at the accomplishments and at the growth of your own organization."

Mr. Anderson told the club that all officers of the International are giving generously of their time and talents without compensation of any kind, other than the satisfaction derived from being of real help to every community included in the realm of Lionism. All that is asked in return is the hearty cooperation of each club, and its willingness to be of real service in its own particular community.

Mort Newcomb was introduced by I. C. Strout, president of the local club, to speak on the subject, "How Minneapolis Lost the 1928 District Convention." The district deputy responded by saying that what had been his city's loss was to be Brainerd's gain, and that Minneapolis handed over the coming big event to Brainerd with the promise of 100 per cent cooperation in making the next convention an outstanding milestone in the history of Lionism in this district.

Minneapolis Lions have plans under consideration for a big "Pep" meeting to be held in that city early this fall, to which all presidents, past presidents, secertaries and past secretaries are to be invited, as well as representatives from the International. The meeting will have for its object the closer unity and cooperation of the various clubs, together with a program for increasing the service of Lionism throughout the district.

This Minneapolis meeting will be held on a Friday, with business sessions morning, afternoon and evening, the delegates to be guests of the Mill City Lions at a university football game the next day.

Messers. Strayer and Olson brought greetings from the Owatonna club, and told of activities being successfully carried out by the Lions in that city. They promised their hearty support to the Brainerd convention, as well as to the International and district programs.

R. E. Wyett, chairman of the banquet committee, reported on the festivities held at Breezy Point last week, when the Brainerd Lions were hosts to the Little Falls den. The joint meeting was exceptionally successful, and did much to further the cooperative spirit between the two clubs.

President Strout announced his standing committees for the coming year and asked each chairman to meet with his committee and draw up a program to be that committee's contribution to the club's activities during the next twelve months.

Dr. G. I. Badeaux added to the pleasure of the evening by rendering several solos, and the Lions club orchestra surprised the den by appearing again after quite an interval of inactivity.

Following the regular meeting the International officers met with the board of directors of the local club, where plans for the coming year's work were carefully gone over together with discussions on the district convention to be held in Brainerd and Breezy Point in 1928.

Following the meeting Messrs. Strout, Geist, and Wyett, drove to Breezy Point with George B. Anderson and Mort Newcomb where they were most cordially received by Captain and Mrs. W. H. Fawcett who showed them through the main lodge, the cottages and their private home.

Messrs. Anderson and Newcomb were enthusiastic in their praise of the location for next year's fifth district convention.

ENCOURAGING

Herbert was confiding his troubles to a friend.

"Yes, she refused me," he said, with a curious smile, "but she did it in a most encouraging way."

"How was that?" asked the friend, "it doesn't seem to worry you much."

"As I went away she pointed to my footprints on the linoleum in the hall and said: 'Next time you come to propose to me I hope you'll remember to wipe your boots on the mat!'"

JERICHO OUTING AT LUM SUNDAY

Attendance Expected to be Over 6,000 With Good Picnic Weather Predicted

ALL DAY ACTIVITIES

Merry-go-Round, Feris Wheel and Bird Circus Included in Entertainment

Autos will pour into Brainerd Sunday where all trails will lead to Lum Park, the mecca of thousands of holiday seekers who will enjoy the second annual Jericho Outing on the shores of Rice Lake where an all day entertainment program will be caried out.

Three thousand people are expected from out of the city, in fact from all parts of central Minnesota while the attendance from Brainerd will swell the number to over 6,000.

The Jericho Outing Association has made plans this year to surpass its first outing held at the south end of Gull Lake last year which was attended by over 4,000 people.

As early as 10 a. m. the activities will commence and from that time until late in the evening there will be something doing all the time.

In addition to the regular program of events there will be a merry-go-round, a ferris wheel and a bird circus, all passed on and okeyed by the local Park Board.

The weather man promises good picnic weather for the affair.

One of the features of the day will be the baseball game between the I. O. O. F. team of Brainerd, of the local league and the I. O. O. F. team of St. Louis Park, Minneapolis. As there is no location for the playing of a fast baseball game at the grounds the game will be played at the N. P. grounds at 3:30 p. m.

The program will include speeches by prominent I. O. O. F. grand lodge officals, a large picnic dinner and supper, music by the Brainerd Boys Concert band, music by members of the Staples lodge, kittenball game between Brainerd, Ironton and Pine River teams, horse shoe pitching, diving contests, swimming races, and a fancy diving exhibition by Dixie Thompson.

The principal speaker of the occasion will be Grand Master E. E. Peck who will address the gathering in the morning on "Fraternity."

Strange Beast Terrorizes

A mysterious beast that walks on its hind legs is terrorizing natives in the Kenya colony of India. It has killed a number of blacks, and the "Nandi bear," as they call it, is inspiring more fear than a lion. No white hunter has seen it, but Kanya's acting game warden, who examined the tracks, agrees that it walks on its hind legs. It has been described as being a strange species of lion, or even gorilla, but natives believe it is a hitherto unknown member of the hyena family that climbs trees. One report is that it has cream-colored hair, long tapering feet, with huge claws, and long nose covered with hair to the tip. It is said to roam only at night.

To distinguish perfume truly take the stopper from each crystal flagon and for a moment move it gently back and forth until the preservative alcohol has evaporated, and only the essence remains. It is then one is greeted by the subtle call of the pure "odeur," and the fragrance of one's choice becomes unmistakable.

Amazing increase in Pontiac Six value made possible by the economies of the world's newest and finest motor car factory.

The announcement last week of a smarter, more beautiful Pontiac Six at surprising price reductions was an unexpected sensation. High quality and low prices had been winning thousands to the Pontiac Six. But due to increasing production in the mammoth new $12,000,000 Pontiac Six plant, savings were being effected. And these were passed to the public, together with the additional value represented in new Duco colors!

Now the Pontiac Six is the only low-priced six offering: Bodies by Fisher—the largest engine used in any six priced up to $1,000—and an oiling system which forces 250 gallons of oil an hour through the engine at 35 m. p. h!

These are only a few of the features which make today's Pontiac Six a triumph of modern design and production! Come in! Learn how much MORE you get in the Pontiac Six at new low prices!

BUSINESS NEEDS THE SEAWAY

THE opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway will do two things of major importance to the business interests of the region tributary to the Great Lakes.

On goods moving into world trade or on goods received from overseas it will offer the saving that water transportation, coupled with distance, affords over a long land haul and a relatively short sea haul.

Equally important, if not more so, is the fact that the St. Lawrence Seaway will allow the manufacturer, the exporter, the importer to come face to face for the first time with his overseas buyer or seller.

The great manufacturing industries of the United States—the packing industry, automobile manufacture, and steel—belong to the Mid-West, belong to the Great Lakes region. To name the cities important in those industries is to name the port cities of the Great Lakes and the cities closely adjacent thereto.

Yet how many Europeans know of Gary, Ind., or of Akron, Ohio, or of Cleveland, to name but a few manufacturing cities of the first rank that come to mind?

The direct benefit that would come to industry through freight saving on goods moving by water from or to the Great Lakes area is obvious.

The benefit that comes from standing on a water front that faces the world needs no discussion.

The question that faces Mid-Western industry is not whether the St. Lawrence Seaway shall be built, but when! Not whether it will pay in dollars and in direct contacts, but how soon business shall begin to draw cash and acquaintance dividends from its use!

With the markets of the world to be lost or won, the industries of the Mid-West can no longer afford to wait passively the coming of the St. Lawrence Seaway. A careful estimate of direct and indirect benefits will convince any business executive, whether engaged in world-wide or domestic commerce, that the St. Lawrence Seaway has a peculiar and personal meaning to him and to his business.

It is high time that such benefits be evaluated and made known—high time that the administration at Washington take the next logical step and write a seaway treaty.

AN AGE OF PERPETUAL YOUTH

NOEL COUARD, writing in the London Graphic, visions a coming age of perpetual youth. He claims that the present is an age of free living and free thinking and free love and comparatively free speech; in fact, an "All-Barriers Down" age.

Second-rate actresses, encouraged by an entree into some of the best houses, wear themselves to shadows in an effort to become ladies, while ladies of unimpeachable breeding but questionable intelligence trample gaily upon century-old traditions in order to become second-rate actresses.

It is an age of young old age and strangely old youth, and very soon there will, in all probability, be no more old age any more, and we shall in the very near future find ourselves injected with peculiar animal glands and be reconstructed and redecorated and rejuvenated and live on and on violently and hopefully, forcing from our minds day by day and year by year the steadily growing realization of complete and utter futility.

In other words, we shall all forget how to grow old gracefully. This matter of growing old is a question of "doing without." A man's eyesight isn't as good as it was, and glasses come into use. After that it's a matter of changing glasses, one pair succeeded by another of greater strength. And the teeth cause trouble, ending by having all taken out and false teeth substituted.

Lumbago and other ills, creaking joints, bring rasping reminders of advancing old age. Bald pates come early. The waistline grows apace, although a judicious course of golfing may reduce the lines somewhat. The figure loses its strtight lines and gets curves.

We know grandmas who have grown old delightfully, retaining charm, magnetism, grace and beauty. Others, bent on maintaining a girlish figure of sixteen, are wearing nerves and body to a frazzle, much as the London writer has pictured.

Nature will stand a certain amount of coaxing and petting. But go beyond that limit and you make a wreck of your nervous system by dieting out of bounds and seeking to be what you are not and can never hope to be.

A MODERN CIRCUIT RIDER

IN days of pioneers the minister traveled a circuit and made his trips on horseback. In these modern days an automobile assists a pastor in visiting a far flung pastorate.

While motoring on Trunk Highway No. 2 Sunday we passed Rev. August Samuelson of Clara Lutheran church of Brainerd. Daily Sundays he covers 85 miles with his car and preaches Sunday morning at Brainerd, in the early afternoon at Pillager and then at Crosby.

WE note with some satisfaction that the corner at A street and Third avenue has been given a nice wide curve in harmony with the corner changes made at Oak and Sixth, Oak and Thirteenth streets. It tends to safer and more convenient driving.

CARS of all states rub elbows on our street parking places. Ontario, Canada, has quite a large representation visiting Brainerd and the lakes. An unusual car was one from the District of Columbia. Iowa and Chicago cars are heavily represented.

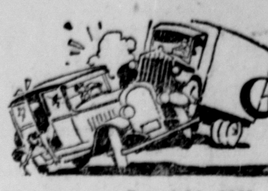

NEED of a new unified code for villages of Minnesota is urged by Harvey Walker, of the League of Minnesota Municipalities, in his book "Village Laws and Government in Minnesota.".

LINDBERGH had the courage to decide quickly, and the valor to ride alone. Every man and every woman and every child must ride alone during the great struggles of life.—Collier's.

LITTLE FALLS gets Lindbergh for a real homecoming celebration, while the best Brainerd can hope for is to have Lindy fly over the town and give us a high ball salute.

HEAVY traffic on the tarvia section of Trunk Highway No. 19 is developing "washboard" disfigurations.

HIRING of a county traffic policeman has served to check high speed on our roads.

What Every Girl Should Know

By GISA PRUCHONE

Copyright, 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

"WHAT EVERY GIRL SHOULD KNOW," with Patsy Ruth Miller, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Mary Sullivan—slender, beautiful, red-headed—is a tennis champion. A poetical, spiritual girl is Mary, despite her physical prowess. Her mother died sewing for a living. Her spirit lives on in Mary. Wally Mason, a young reporter, loves Mary. But she disbelieves in love. Mary keeps house for her brothers, David and Robert. David, the family support, hopes Mary will get safely married. David kills the fiancee of Arthur Graham in an auto accident. Graham's parents are bitter toward David. A neighbor consoles Mary. Then the trial is at hand.

CHAPTER VI

"I—I can't stand it, Mrs. Tomlinson, dear." Mary's hot young forehead against the thin bosom of Mrs. Tomlinson, her fingers held close to her cheeks, trying to catch up the tears as they raced.

"Hush, baby, hush."

"It isn't fair, it isn't fair, I tell you." Hot sobs that tore from her breast and seemed to carry her very inner being with them.

"Sh, Mary, dear. It's the Lord's will and all for the best," she murmured, clucking mother phrases against the tumbled soft hair, and stroking the head that was cushioned on her breast.

Quivering sobs that rippled through Mary's young body as did the wind through the hedge outside. Deep tearing sobs, till it seemed that the last would carry her away with it as it melted into the afternoon silence of the semi-darkened room.

"What can I do?" The face Mary raised was wild, with a sudden leap of light to the eyes. A ferocity had taken possession of it at the thought of the inevitability of the court decision earlier that day. It wasn't possible—it was one of those things, those wild conjurations of the brain that took possession of the mind while asleep. But she was not asleep. This was no dream, but hard actuality. And, it being actuality, how could the frail feminine hands of Mary ward it off? What could she do? What could she do? Was this what was meant by taking leave of one's senses? There was that phrase in the book, "The harassed and long-suffering woman then took leave of her senses." This was it, then. These mocking thoughts that raced madly through your mind and laughed at one another and hid in dark corners and brooded, then raced madly on again. Her head. It was so enormous. There was a throb in it that grew from a little pulse to something that no longer was contained in her head, but that contained her head instead. It grew and grew, ghoulishly Gargantuan, till the corners of the room were pulsating with it. The throb was in the air; it leered at Mary; it minced closer and closer with grimaces that caused her to shrink, until finally the horror of it was too close. You couldn't retreat because of the horror you felt behind you. There was nowhere to go. Even Mrs. Tomlinson had joined forces with the capering host, and then Mary blessedly fainted.

Ten years at hard labor—he had taken it without flinching.

Those were difficult weeks. Mary had forgotten the existence of the high places, to which her gold tipped wings would carry her, as for thinking that she would walk their mighty crags with dainty feet—that was ludicrous, somehow. Life had taught Mary. Taught her sternly that it was high time she walked the earth, with others of her ilk. And Mary no longer rebelled at the position that had been relegated to her as she did during those first few days of Davie's sentence, when life seemed too cruel to bear. What was the use? Mary's soul had questioned her mind. What was the use of anything, if you were so unarmed, so helpless against this inexorable fate? It was like a builder who set up little careful stones upon one another. Set it up this way, and thus, and perhaps like this? All with an eye to the beauty of the ensemble. Then the wind that tore it down with a mocking laugh. "Piff! You builder! Work and toil and sweat for the beauty of the finished product, and sell your soul for it. You puny builder! Don't you know better than to play with me? I do not care for your bricks, builder. Their color does not please me. What! You have spent your life upon them, to make them snugly fit? What does that matter to me? I tell you I do not care for the color of the bricks!" And down they come. There seemed to be no protection against it. No way in which to ward off fate that plays with human lives as do kittens with straws. No. Mary would not rebel. She was glad now to be permitted to walk the earth, if but the chasms would be spared her.

She thought of the sentence that had been pronounced upon David that still summer afternoon so many decades ago. The courtroom had been crowded to suffocation. There had been the element of human passion in this case which had brought out all who had been able to walk. Mary realized only that afternoon the extent of her friendship in the town. So many eyes. Some of them smiling timidly, some avoiding her gaze, others staring frankly. Mrs. Tomlinson had been the bulwark. And Wally's steady gaze from the reporter's table near the bench. They had both buoyed her up somehow. The impassioned plea of the prosecuting attorney. Why did he hate David so? White faced David sitting beside his lawyer and looking at no one but Mary till called upon to testify in his own behalf. The testimony of Arthur Graham. That of a woman who had witnessed the catastrophe. The summing up, with the district attorney waxing more and more eloquent upon the beauty of the deceased, her loveliness, her charm, that had been cut off by this drunken roisterer, this killer of America's womanhood, this, this, this! That had been horrible, with the memories of Davie coming home with the Saturday pay envelope and handing it to Mary. "Here you are, kid. Let's have mushroom soup tomorrow, huh?—to celebrate." To celebrate. No. "Not mushroom soup, old dear. We shall save for the thermos bottle." Davie, all unaware. "Thermos bottle—bunk! The old whiskey flask is good enough. Let's have the mushrooms, Sister Anne." Very well then, it was difficult to refuse Davie. Very well then. They would have the mushroom soup. Davie had a passion for mushroom soup. Davie, the drunken roisterer, the slayer of America's womanhood, Davie had a passion for mushroom soup.

Then the jury left. Their return, slowly, weighed with the somberness of the occasion. Wally's eyes trying to find her own to signal courage. But she wasn't looking at Wally, though she felt the concentration of his gaze. There was not one for her eyes but David. White faced David.

Mary closed her eyes to shut out the sight of his face as the foreman delivered his message. Ten years at hard labor. He had taken it without flinching, making sure to flash a smile at her before being led away. Davie, Davie, her dear brother Davie! There was still this heavy weight on her heart, despite her obeisance made to the wishes of fate. It was difficult to think of Davie because everything else at the time dwindled in comparison. He and his life for the next ten years loomed large, blotting out the sun, the earth, existence itself.

She pressed her hand to her eyes, then shook her head as if to rid herself of a spectre. That was finished. Somehow the next ten years would be obliterated. She didn't know exactly how, but it had to be done. There was but one thing for which to live now. A culmination ten years hence. And, of course, Bobbie. There was always Bobbie. Young Robert who strove so valiantly to emulate his Lancelot. Alas, the tanned "Elaine" was growing whiter and fairer day by day, and Robert, who had longed for it during the days of lusty racquet swings, now carried an ache in his heart.

Mrs. Tomlinson came in to talk things over. "What do you intend to do, do you know, dear?" Her eyes were brooding places of sorrow.

Mary looked very young, and very frail.

"I don't know. Would you advise anything, Mrs. Tomlinson?"

"We were talking it over, Mr. Tomlinson and I. The house isn't yours, is it dear?"

"No. Davie rented it furnished." It was becoming much easier to mention his name.

"Do you suppose, if you got something to do, that you could keep it up?"

"I've thought of that, Mrs. Tomlinson. I don't think so. Bob and I will have to find a much cheaper place in which to live. A furnished room, somewhere."

The brooding pity in Mrs. Tomlinson's eyes.

Developing Palestine

Although economic conditions in Palestine are still primitive, modern methods are making headway, and there are good prospects of development and progress. The country is generally fertile, and cereals, grapes, olives and various fruits are produced, while sheep and goats thrive in the lowlands, and in the mountains in time of drought.

Crooks' "Voice-Prints"

The voices can be preserved without the knowledge of the criminal, and, even though the criminal may make attempts to alter his voice, the inventor maintains that he would still retain the same rhythm.

It is high time that such benefits be evaluated and made known—high time that the administration at Washington take the next logical step and write a seaway treaty.

AN AGE OF PERPETUAL YOUTH

NOEL COUARD, writing in the London Graphic, visions a coming age of perpetual youth. He claims that the present is an age of free living and free thinking and free love and comparatively free speech; in fact, an "All-Barriers Down" age.

Second-rate actresses, encouraged by an entree into some of the best houses, wear themselves to shadows in an effort to become ladies, while ladies of unimpeachable breeding but questionable intelligence trample gaily upon century-old traditions in order to become second-rate actresses.

It is an age of young old age and strangely old youth, and very soon there will, in all probability, be no more old age any more, and we shall in the very near future find ourselves injected with peculiar animal glands and be reconstructed and redecorated and rejuvenated and live on and on violently and hopefully, forcing from our minds day by day and year by year the steadily growing realization of complete and utter futility.

In other words, we shall all forget how to grow old gracefully. This matter of growing old is a question of "doing without." A man's eyesight isn't as good as it was, and glasses come into use. After that it's a matter of changing glasses, one pair succeeded by another of greater strength. And the teeth cause trouble, ending by having all taken out and false teeth substituted.

Lumbago and other ills, creaking joints, bring rasping reminders of advancing old age. Bald pates come early. The waistline grows apace, although a judicious course of golfing may reduce the lines somewhat. The figure loses its srtight lines and gets curves.

We know grandmas who have grown old delightfully, retaining charm, magnetism, grace and beauty. Others, bent on maintaining a girlish figure of sixteen, are wearing nerves and body to a frazzle, much as the London writer has pictured.

Nature will stand a certain amount of coaxing and petting. But go beyond that limit and you make a wreck of your nervous system by dieting out of bounds and seeking to be what you are not and can never hope to be.

A MODERN CIRCUIT RIDER

IN days of pioneers the minister traveled a circuit and made his trips on horseback. In these modern days an automobile assists a pastor in visiting a far flung pastorate.

While motoring on Trunk Highway No. 2 Sunday we passed Rev. August Samuelson of Clara Lutheran church of Brainerd. Daily Sundays he covers 85 miles with his car and preaches Sunday morning at Brainerd, in the early afternoon at Pillager and then at Crosby.

WE note with some satisfaction that the corner at A street and Third avenue has been given a nice wide curve in harmony with the corner changes made at Oak and Sixth, Oak and Thirteenth streets. It tends to safer and more convenient driving.

CARS of all states rub elbows on our street parking places. Ontario, Canada, has quite a large representation visiting Brainerd and the lakes. An unusual car was one from the District of Columbia. Iowa and Chicago cars are heavily represented.

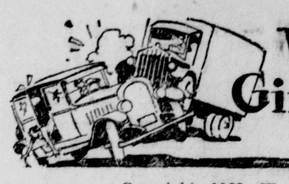

NEED of a new unified code for villages of Minnesota is urged by Harvey Walker, of the League of Minnesota Municipalities, in his book "Village Laws and Government in Minnesota."

LINDBERGH had the courage to decide quickly, and the valor to ride alone. Every man and every woman and every child must ride alone during the great struggles of life.—Collier's.

LITTLE FALLS gets Lindbergh for a real homecoming celebration, while the best Brainerd can hope for is to have Lindy fly over the town and give us a high ball salute.

HEAVY traffic on the tarvia section of Trunk Highway No. 19 is developing "washboard" disfigurations.

HIRING of a county traffic policeman has served to check high speed on our roads.

What Every Girl Should Know

"WHAT EVERY GIRL SHOULD KNOW," with Patsy Ruth Miller, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Mary Sullivan—slender, beautiful, red-headed—is a tennis champion. A poetical, spiritual girl is Mary, despite her physical prowess. Her mother died sewing for a living. Her spirit lives on in Mary. Wally Mason, a young reporter, loves Mary. But she disbelieves in love. Mary keeps house for her brothers, David and Robert. David, the family support, hopes Mary will get safely married. David kills the fiancee of Arthur Graham in an auto accident. Graham's parents are bitter toward David. A neighbor consoles Mary. Then the trial is at hand.

CHAPTER VI

"I—I can't stand it, Mrs. Tomlinson, dear." Mary's hot young forehead against the thin bosom of Mrs. Tomlinson, her fingers held close to her cheeks, trying to catch up the tears as they raced.

"Hush, baby, hush."

"It isn't fair, it isn't fair, I tell you." Hot sobs that tore from her breast and seemed to carry her very inner being with them.

"Sh, Mary, dear. It's the Lord's will and all for the best," she murmured, clucking mother phrases against the tumbled soft hair, and stroking the head that was cushioned on her breast.

Quivering sobs that rippled through Mary's young body as did the wind through the hedge outside. Deep tearing sobs, till it seemed that the last would carry her away with it as it melted into the afternoon silence of the semi-darkened room.

"What can I do?" The face Mary raised was wild, with a sudden leap of light to the eyes. A ferocity had taken possession of it at the thought of the inevitability of the court decision earlier that day. It wasn't possible—it was one of those things, those wild conjurations of the brain that took possession of the mind while asleep. But she was not asleep. This was no dream, but hard actuality. And, it being actuality, how could the frail feminine hands of Mary ward it off? What could she do? What could she do? Was this what was meant by taking leave of one's senses? There was that phrase in the book, "The harassed and long-suffering woman then took leave of her senses." This was it, then. These mocking thoughts that raced madly through your mind and laughed at one another and hid in dark corners and brooded, then raced madly on again. Her head. It was so enormous. There was a throb in it that grew from a little pulse to something that no longer was contained in her head, but that contained her head instead. It grew and grew, ghoulishly Gargantuan, till the corners of the room were pulsating with it. The throb was in the air; it leered at Mary; it minced closer and closer with grimaces that caused her to shrink, until finally the horror of it was too close. You couldn't retreat because of the horror you felt behind you. There was nowhere to go. Even Mrs. Tomlinson had joined forces with the capering host, and then Mary blessedly fainted.

Ten years at hard labor—he had taken it without flinching.

Those were difficult weeks. Mary had forgotten the existence of the high places, to which her gold tipped wings would carry her, as for thinking that she would walk their mighty crags with dainty feet—that was ludicrous, somehow. Life had taught Mary. Taught her sternly that it was high time she walked the earth, with others of her ilk. And Mary no longer rebelled at the position that had been relegated to her as she did during those first few days of Davie's sentence, when life seemed too cruel to bear. What was the use? Mary's soul had questioned her mind. What was the use of anything, if you were so unarmed, so helpless against this inexorable fate? It was like a builder who set up little careful stones upon one another. Set it up this way, and thus, and perhaps like this? All with an eye to the beauty of the ensemble. Then the wind that tore it down with a mocking laugh. "Piff! You builder! Work and toil and sweat for the beauty of the finished product, and sell your soul for it. You puny builder! Don't you know better than to play with me? I do not care for your bricks, builder. Their color does not please me. What! You have spent your life upon them, to make them snugly fit? What does that matter to me? I tell you I do not care for the color of the bricks!" And down they come. There seemed to be no protection against it. No way in which to ward off fate that plays with human lives as do kittens with straws. No. Mary would not rebel. She was glad now to be permitted to walk the earth, if but the chasms would be spared her.

She thought of the sentence that had been pronounced upon David that still summer afternoon so many decades ago. The courtroom had been crowded to suffocation. There had been the element of human passion in this case which had brought out all who had been able to walk. Mary realized only that afternoon the extent of her friendship in the town. So many eyes. Some of them smiling timidly, some avoiding her gaze, others staring frankly. Mrs. Tomlinson had been the bulwark. And Wally's steady gaze from the reporter's table near the bench. They had both buoyed her up somehow. The impassioned plea of the prosecuting attorney. Why did he hate David so? White faced David sitting beside his lawyer and looking at no one but Mary till called upon to testify in his own behalf. The testimony of Arthur Graham. That of a woman who had witnessed the catastrophe. The summing up, with the district attorney waxing more and more eloquent upon the beauty of the deceased, her loveliness, her charm, that had been cut off by this drunken roisterer, this killer of America's womanhood, this, this, this! That had been horrible, with the memories of Davie coming home with the Saturday pay envelope and handing it to Mary. "Here you are, kid. Let's have mushroom soup tomorrow, huh?—to celebrate." To celebrate. No. "Not mushroom soup, old dear. We shall save for the thermos bottle." Davie, all unaware. "Thermos bottle—bunk! The old whiskey flask is good enough. Let's have the mushrooms, Sister Anne." Very well then. It was difficult to refuse Davie. Very well then. They would have the mushroom soup. Davie had a passion for mushroom soup. Davie, the drunken roisterer, the slayer of America's womanhood, Davie had a passion for mushroom soup.

Then the jury left. Their return, slowly, weighed with the somberness of the occasion. Wally's eyes trying to find her own to signal courage. But she wasn't looking at Wally, though she felt the concentration of his gaze. There was not one for her eyes but David. White faced David.

Mary closed her eyes to shut out the sight of his face as the foreman delivered his message. Ten years at hard labor. He had taken it without flinching, making sure to flash a smile at her before being led away. Davie, Davie, her dear brother Davie! There was still this heavy weight on her heart, despite her obeisance made to the wishes of fate. It was difficult to think of Davie because everything else at the time dwindled in comparison. He and his life for the next ten years loomed large, blotting out the sun, the earth, existence itself.

She pressed her hand to her eyes, then shook her head as if to rid herself of a spectre. That was finished. Somehow the next ten years would be obliterated. She didn't know exactly how, but it had to be done. There was but one thing for which to live now. A culmination ten years hence. And, of course, Bobbie. There was always Bobbie. Young Robert who strove so valiantly to emulate his Lancelot. Alas, the tanned "Elaine" was growing whiter and fairer day by day, and Robert, who had longed for it during the days of lusty racquet swings, now carried an ache in his heart.

Mrs. Tomlinson came in to talk things over. "What do you intend to do, do you know, dear?" Her eyes were brooding places of sorrow.

Mary looked very young, and very frail.

"I don't know. Would you advise anything, Mrs. Tomlinson?"

"We were talking it over, Mr. Tomlinson and I. The house isn't yours, is it dear?"

"No. Davie rented it furnished." It was becoming much easier to mention his name.

"Do you suppose, if you got something to do, that you could keep it up?"

"I've thought of that, Mrs. Tomlinson. I don't think so. Bob and I will have to find a much cheaper place in which to live. A furnished room, somewhere."

The brooding pity in Mrs. Tomlinson's eyes.

Developing Palestine

Although economic conditions in Palestine are still primitive, modern methods are making headway, and there are good prospects of development and progress. The country is generally fertile, and cereals, grapes, olives and various fruits are produced, while sheep and goats thrive in the lowlands, and in the mountains in time of drought.

Crooks' "Voice-Prints"

A new phonographic device will enable the police to keep records of criminals' voices, and thereby have additional clues in their hands. The voices can be preserved without the knowledge of the criminal, and, even though the criminal may make attempts to alter his voice, the inventor maintains that he would still retain the same rhythm.

RUMBLINGS OF CONTROVERSY TEMPER DEMPSEY'S VICTORY

LAID SHARKEY WITH KNOCKOUT IN 7TH ROUND

SHARKEY SETS UP CLAIM THAT THE BLOW WAS UNFAIR

REFEREE SIDES WITH DEMPSEY, EXAMINER MAKES HIS REPORT

By MORRIS DE HAVEN TRACY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, July 22.—Jack Dempsey, who for seven years before he met Gene Tunney was the heavyweight champion of the world and the terror of the ring, has returned to glory—but already the glory is tempered by rumblings of controversy.

He laid Jack Sharkey low and sent him beaten from the Yankee stadium last night. But there are hundreds who were near the ring who believed the blow preceding the knockout was below the belt and that Dempsey, all unintentionally, has won the right to meet Gene Tunney by fouling Sharkey.

Sharkey himself maintains that the blow was unfair. Dempsey denies it. The referee sided with Dempsey and the examiner for the boxing commission could find no evidence to support Sharkey's claim.

However, the examiner, Dr. William H. Walker, physician of the state athletic commission, said after going over Sharkey in the latter's dressing room after the fight:

"While I found no surface evidence of a foul in my examination, this does not mean that Sharkey was not hit low. It does not necessarily follow that a low punch will show immediately afterward. There may be evidence of such a blow today. It is altogether possible that Sharkey was hit low, not once but several times. I found Sharkey to be in severe pain and he did not appear to be putting on in any way."

Charles Mathison, one of the judges, issued the following statement:

"While the referee is the sole arbiter in the matter of foul blows, I am making the following report to the state athletic commission:

"'Jack Sharkey was hit below the waistline immediately before the knockout punch and Dempsey should have been disqualified. Dempsey was also guilty of hitting low in several other rounds'."

Jack O'Sullivan, the referee, said:

"The blow which preceded the knockout punch, a left to the jaw, was a fairly delivered one. It was a right uppercut that landed on the waistline, but not below. It is true that Dempsey landed at times below the waistline in previous rounds, but in no case were the punches injurious or deliberate, nor was there any protest made by Sharkey previous to the final round."

But all at the ringside agree that before the end came Dempsey was pouring punches into Sharkey's body near the belt and more than one expert was outspoken today in saying that two or more of these blows were below the deadline.

The writer could not see with enough certainty to venture an opinion. United Press staff men who were immediately at the edge of the ring, differed in their ideas of how the blows were struck. One believed there was no question about the legality of the knockout; another thought it was just on the belt line, and a third believed it low. It is worth noting that Sharkey wore his belt a good two inches higher than did Dempsey.

Just what the truth of it all is, probably no one will ever know and there will be thousands and millions of words spoken and written before the controversy is laid away, undecided, with many like it in the history of the ring.

But, foul or no foul, Dempsey has made a better start on his comeback than has any heavyweight champion in history.

He did it by virtue of a moment's hesitation.

In the seventh round those of the 80,000 people present who were fortunate enough to hold other than so-called "ring side seats" saw Dempsey crash a blow to Sharkey's body with such violence that he fairly seemed to bury his fist.

Sharkey, shaken, terribly tortured with pain, sagged. His guard dropped and he hesitated, stopped fighting, and began mustering the strength he had left to protest that he had been fouled.

Jack O'Sullivan, the referee, started to say something, hesitated a moment, and Jack Dempsey caught Jack Sharkey with another terrific blow squarely on the chin.

Sharkey dropped. A happy, victorious Dempsey, walked to a neutral corner and watched as the referee counted out the cocky young Lithuanian.

When the referee's sweeping arm dropped for the tenth time and the official rushed to raise the right hand of Jack Dempsey, the seconds, aided by Dempsey, dragged the still helpless Sharkey from mid-ring to his corner and the ovation to Dempsey had died away before Sharkey, still needing assistance, was tucked beneath the ropes and staggered to his dressing room.

It was Jack Dempsey's night.

The crowd had started gathering in the morning hours of Thursday, had grown through the afternoon and by 8 P. M. was ranged row upon row and tier upon tier high into the air of the three storied stand. And it was a Dempsey crowd.

The ring, lighted by 34 brilliant lamps arranged in a cross, shone in the cool, comfortable night air, like some vast gem mounted in a great dark plaque.

Back from it ranged the people. First came the 17,000 who bought the seats called "ringside."

Back of them were the bleachers and the stands. Some 65,000 people were in them and they, added to the exclusive group of 17,000 at the ringside and a few thousand more in scattered places, made up the crowd of about 83,000.

To get the crowd to the park had been a task which taxed the transportation facilities to capacity.

Once there and seated, the throng presented a never-to-be-forgotten scene. Looking up into the stands or out across the field to the bleachers, it was just a mass of faces.

Smoke from thousands of cigars and cigarettes floated in a heavy haze against the lights. Matches lighted by smokers glowed fitfully like many fire-flies, through the haze.

A single, colored balloon floated out from one corner of the stands.

The crowd cared little for the preliminaries.

Then, as the last of the three opening fights was over, there was a stir. The fighters were coming from their dressing rooms. Someone way up in front in the ringside seats, stood on a bench. His partner joined him and in an instant about two thousand of the 17,000 ringsiders were doing the same.

Dempsey gave the impression of a man who had a job to do and intended doing it, a business like appearance. Sharkey was gay, and blustering. They went through the formalities of introduction — entirely unnecessary as everyone knew them so well they called them by their first names — and then the gong clanged.

There was excitement from the first round to the last. The throng cheered Dempsey continually.

The crowd was wild to acclaim that Jack Dempsey had come back. It couldn't keep in its seats. In the ringside section the people were no longer standing on their benches, but were balancing precariously one foot on the back of one bench and the other foot on the back of the bench ahead. Each time a particularly telling blow was struck there would be a series of crashes. Someone had become excited, and tipped over a bench men, and women falling in a flurry of upturned seats and up-turned humanity, not always dignified. But they were ever up and at it again.

When the knockout came a wild shout went up which shook the echoes of the Yankee stadium as they never shook to honor Babe Ruth when he drove a homer with the bases full. The ovation Dempsey got last night made that given Tunney at Philadelphia sound like the twitter of a canary bird.

Listening closely one could hear an undertone of "booes," the favorite New York way of saying "You're all wrong." It was the first dim beginning of the controversy of the year in sporting circles—the question of whether Dempsey hit Sharkey low.

No one thinks Dempsey would foul another man intentionally. He isn't built along those lines. But he was fighting to win and he knew the best attack on Sharkey was on what once was called the solar plexus. He aimed blow after blow in that direction and landed many.

Tex Rickard denied today that Dempsey had fouled Sharkey, and did a little ballyhooing for the Dempsey-Tunney fight which he said would be held in mid-September "at a place not yet determined."

Rickard characterized the Dempsey-Sharkey fight as "the best I ever saw." He said:

"I was right at the ringside. I was watching every minute, and I would have seen a foul blow if one had been struck in the seventh round. No, Dempsey hit Sharkey in the pit of the stomach—right in the pit of the stomach. Sharkey took two blows to the head before he fell. A man would have dropped quicker than that if he had been hit low. He didn't act like a man who had been hit low.

"One time early in the fight I thought Dempsey was hitting low, but that happens in all fights and Sharkey didn't seem to notice it.

"Where Sharkey failed was in not coming right into the fight and mixing it with Dempsey. He waited too long. He did not fight fast enough.

"Dempsey came out fighting all the time. He looked as if he could lick anybody."

"Does that include Tunney?" Rickard was asked.

"Well, he would have a better chance than he did in the Philadelphia fight," the promoter said.

New York, July 22.—The Dempsey-Sharkey fight drew larger receipts than any previous non-championship fight and was exceeded by only two fights for the world boxing title.

The receipts and their distribution were estimated today as follows:

Receipts	$1,100,000
Dempsey's share	250,000
Sharkey's share	215,000
Expense	610,000
Government tax	100,000
State tax	50,000
Profit	340,000

The Dempsey-Tunney fight at Philadelphia last September played to a $2,000,000 house, and the receipts at the Dempsey-Carpentier fight were $1,826,000.

In fight receipts tabulation, fighters' shares are included in the item of $610,000 for expenses and should not be added up separately in computing the total.

ESTELLE TAYLOR WANTS DEMPSEY TO FIGHT TUNNEY

Hollywood, July 22.—(UP)—Estelle Taylor wants her husband, Jack Dempsey, to whip Gene Tunney and retire with the world's heavyweight championship belt in his possession.

Happy over her mate's victory over Jack Sharkey and confident that he will acquiese to her wishes, Miss Taylor rested today following weeks of strain. After hearing the fight over radio last night Miss Taylor was nearly exhausted.

"The strain has been almost too much for me," she told the United Press. "I am glad that he won and that it is all over. I was so worried that Jack might get hurt.

"Now I want him to whip Tunney and retire."

DEMPSEY AND SHARKEY AFTER FIGHT STATEMENTS

DEMPSEY SAYS HE BLOCKED LEVERAGE OF SHARKEY'S BLOWS

SHARKEY BELIEVES HE HAD DEMPSEY GROGGY A DOZEN TIMES

New York, July 22—(UP)—After the fight Jack Dempsey and Jack Sharkey made the following statements:

Dempsey: "Make no mistake about it, this fellow Sharkey is no sucker. He is a tough, rugged young fellow who can hit, and hit hard, but he never had me badly hurt or seriously shaken. Always my head was clear and I had plenty left. You see, I never permitted Sharkey to get so that he could get the best leverage, for his blows. He is very quick and it is hard for me to land fairly, but when finally I did get a shot at his chin—and you know the answer."

Sharkey: "It's all in the game, and I'll be back at the top before Dempsey is. Say, that guy couldn't break an egg. His punch is gone, if he ever had a punch. I had him licked, and he knew it, and that's why he fouled me. Dempsey was drunk and groggy a dozen times, while he never was able to feaze me.

"Dempsey knew I had his number from the start and he was hitting low all night. He deliberately hit me in the groin four times just before he clipped me. I was failing from the pain when the last blow brushed my chin. I was not knocked out. I simply doubled up from the pain and could not rise.

"I hope to have the pleasure of meeting that bird in the ring again, but I guess Gene Tunney will beat me to it."

PITTSBURGH DROPS A DOUBLE HEADER TO BOSTON CREW

CHICAGO CUBS APPEARED VERY WEAK BEFORE THE PHILLIES

BUSH STARTED HURLING AND WAS MET BY DELUGE OF BASE HITS

(By United Press)

The Chicago Cubs moved back into first place in the National League even though the Philadelphia Nationals handed them a 7-3 defeat. Key to the leadership came through the fact that Pittsburgh dropped a double header to Boston.

The Cubs appeared very weak before the Phillies. Bush started the hurling but was met by a deluge of base hits in the second and third innings. Jones, who succeeded him, worked effectively until the sixth, when the Phillies added their final two counts.

The Pirates ran into a seemingly rejuvenated team when they met the Braves. Six scintillating double plays are indicative of the brilliancy of the Braves' inner defense that gave them a 2-1 and a 5-2 victory over the Corsairs.

Sergeant George Connally was an effective pitcher for the Chicago White Sox for the first seven innings against the Yankees. He permitted Buster Gehrig to get a looping double and that was the only hit. But in the eighth Lazzeri drove a triple to the outfield. Before the inning was ended the Yankees had four runs and the game ended 4-1 in favor of the New Yorkers.

Devormer tried to nip Jim Bottomley off third base in the tenth inning of the game between the St. Louis Cardinals and the Giants but his toss went to the outfield. This permitted the Cardinal first baseman to score with the run that gave the champions a 7-6 victory.

An error in the thirteenth inning by Herman enabled the Cincinnati Reds to win from Brooklyn, 2-1. Both Doak and Luque pitched near perfect baseball through the first nine innings. Both teams scored in the tenth.

A ninth inning rally that brought in three runs gave the St. Louis Browns a victory in the first game of their double header with Washington. In the second game the count was knotted at 2-2 in the seventh when darkness necessitated cessation of play.

Six errors by the Cleveland Indians permitted the Philadelphia Athletics to score six runs and to finally work out an 8-3 victory. In the first inning Ty Cobb got a life on an error, stole second, loped to third when that base was unprotected and scored when Jacobson made a bad throw in from the outfield.

Lundgren was wild and this enabled Detroit to win its fourth consecutive game, the victory coming over Boston, 7-3.

Kansas City, Mo.—An Indianapolis rally following two bungles by Kansas City players gave the Indians the long end of a 10 to 5 score here. Luther Roy pitched a good game for the Blues, who did not give decent support until too late.

St. Paul.—Six runs in the sixth when bunched hits and errors prevailed, gave St. Paul a 7 to 1 victory over Toledo here. Betts allowed four scattered hits and agonized Toledo in the rally with a two-base hit with two men on.

Minneapolis — Emmer, knocking his 16th homer of the season in the ninth inning with a knotted score, gave Minneapolis a 4 to 3 victory over Columbus. Emmer's homer tied the record of Earl Smith also of Minneapolis, who had been leading the league.

Milwaukee, Wis. — A pitchers' battle between Tincup and Gearin featured the game here when Louisville defeated Milwaukee 4 to 1. The Colonels won in the eighth scoring three runs.

BASEBALL'S BIG FIVE

Tris Speaker made two doubles and as many singles in seven times at bat.

Ruth, Gehrig, and Hornsby each made a double. Ruth was at bat twice against four times for Lou and five times for the Rajah.

Cobb singled once in four chances.

DEMONSTRATION OF DEMPSEY PUNCH IS FATAL TO NOVICE

Philadelphia, July 22.—(UP)—A demonstration of the Dempsey punch combination that defeated Sharkey in New York today resulted in the death of Thomas Cellouicci, 27, and the arrest of his friend, John Derogatis, 20, on a charge of manslaughter.

After hearing a radio account of the battle, the two walked homeward, excitedly discussing the sudden termination of the Dempsey-Sharkey fight.

They stopped on a corner to work out the details.

Cellouicci led with a right to Derogatis' head.

"That's the way Dempsey did it," Derogatis said.

Cellouicci dropped to the pavement and did not arise. Passersby sent Cellouicci to a hospital and Derogatis went to a police station and reported the accident. Cellouicci died this morning and Derogatis was held for manslaughter.

Physicians said the dead youth's skull was fractured when he struck the pavement.

RUMBLINGS OF CONTROVERSY TEMPER DEMPSEY'S VICTORY

LAID SHARKEY WITH KNOCKOUT IN 7TH ROUND

SHARKEY SETS UP CLAIM THAT THE BLOW WAS UNFAIR

REFEREE SIDES WITH DEMPSEY, EXAMINER MAKES HIS REPORT

By MORRIS DE HAVEN TRACY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, July 22.—Jack Dempsey, who for seven years before he met Gene Tunney was the heavyweight champion of the world and the terror of the ring, has returned to glory—but already the glory is tempered by rumblings of controversy.

He laid Jack Sharkey low and sent him beaten from the Yankee stadium last night. But there are hundreds who were near the ring who believed the blow preceding the knockout was below the belt and that Dempsey, all unintentionally, has won the right to meet Gene Tunney by fouling Sharkey.

Sharkey himself maintains that the blow was unfair. Dempsey denies it. The referee sided with Dempsey and the examiner for the boxing commission could find no evidence to support Sharkey's claim.

However, the examiner, Dr. William H. Walker, physician of the state athletic commission, said after going over Sharkey in the latter's dressing room after the fight:

"While I found no surface evidence of a foul in my examination, this does not mean that Sharkey was not hit low. It does not necessarily follow that a low punch will show immediately afterward. There may be evidence of such a blow today. It is altogether possible that Sharkey was hit low, not once but several times. I found Sharkey to be in severe pain and he did not appear to be putting on in any way."

Charles Mathison, one of the judges, issued the following statement:

"While the referee is the sole arbiter in the matter of foul blows, I am making the following report to the state athletic commission:

"'Jack Sharkey was hit below the waistline immediately before the knockout punch and Dempsey should have been disqualified. Dempsey was also guilty of hitting low in several other rounds'."

Jack O'Sullivan, the referee, said:

"The blow which preceded the knockout punch, a left to the jaw, was a fairly delivered one. It was a right uppercut that landed on the waistline, but not below. It is true that Dempsey landed at times below the waistline in previous rounds, but in no case were the punches injurious or deliberate, nor was there any protest made by Sharkey previous to the final round."

But all at the ringside agree that before the end came Dempsey was pouring punches into Sharkey's body near the belt and more than one expert was outspoken today in saying that two or more of these blows were below the deadline.

The writer could not see with enough certainty to venture an opinion. United Press staff men who were immediately at the edge of the ring, differed in their ideas of how the blows were struck. One believed there was no question about the legality of the knockout; another thought it was just on the belt line, and a third believed it low. It is worth noting that Sharkey wore his belt a good two inches higher than did Dempsey.

Just what the truth of it all is, probably no one will ever know and there will be thousands and millions of words spoken and written before the controversy is laid away, undecided, with many like it in the history of the ring.

But, foul or no foul, Dempsey has made a better start on his comeback than has any heavyweight champion in history.

He did it by virtue of a moment's hesitation.

In the seventh round those of the 80,000 people present who were fortunate enough to hold other than so-called "ring side seats" saw Dempsey crash a blow to Sharkey's body with such violence that he fairly seemed to bury his fist.

Sharkey, shaken, terribly tortured with pain, sagged. His guard dropped and he hesitated, stopped fighting, and began mustering the strength he had left to protest that he had been fouled.

Jack O'Sullivan, the referee, started to say something, hesitated a moment, and Jack Dempsey caught Jack Sharkey with another terrific blow squarely on the chin.

Sharkey dropped. A happy, victorious Dempsey, walked to a neutral corner and watched as the referee counted out the cocky young Lithuanian.

When the referee's sweeping arm dropped for the tenth time and the official rushed to raise the right hand of Jack Dempsey, the seconds, aided by Dempsey, dragged the still helpless Sharkey from mid-ring to his corner and the ovation to Dempsey had died away before Sharkey, still needing assistance, was tucked beneath the ropes and staggered to his dressing room.

It was Jack Dempsey's night.

The crowd had started gathering in the morning hours of Thursday, had grown through the afternoon and by 8 P. M. was ranged row upon row and tier upon tier high into the air of the three storied stand. And it was a Dempsey crowd.

The ring, lighted by 34 brilliant lamps arranged in a cross, shone in the cool, comfortable night air, like some vast gem mounted in a great dark plaque.

Back from it ranged the people. First came the 17,000 who bought the seats called "ringside."

Back of them were the bleachers and the stands. Some 65,000 people were in them and they, added to the exclusive group of 17,000 at the ringside and a few thousand more in scattered places, made up the crowd of about 83,000.

To get the crowd to the park had been a task which taxed the transportation facilities to capacity.

Once there and seated, the throng presented a never-to-be-forgotten scene. Looking up into the stands or out across the field to the bleachers, it was just a mass of faces.

Smoke from thousands of cigars and cigarettes floated in a heavy haze against the lights. Matches lighted by smokers glowed fitfully like many fire-flies, through the haze.

A single, colored balloon floated out from one corner of the stands.

The crowd cared little for the preliminaries.

Then, as the last of the three opening fights was over, there was a stir. The fighters were coming from their dressing rooms. Someone way up in front in the ringside seats, stood on a bench. His partner joined him and in an instant about two thousand of the 17,000 ringsiders were doing the same.

Dempsey gave the impression of a man who had a job to do and intended doing it, a business like appearance. Sharkey was gay, and blustering. They went through the formalities of introduction — entirely unnecessary as everyone knew them so well they called them by their first names — and then the gong clanged.

There was excitement from the first round to the last. The throng cheered Dempsey continually.

The crowd was wild to acclaim that Jack Dempsey had come back. It couldn't keep in its seats. In the ringside section the people were no longer standing on their benches, but were balancing precariously one foot on the back of one bench and the other foot on the back of the bench ahead. Each time a particularly telling blow was struck there would be a series of crashes. Someone had become excited, and tipped over a bench men, and women falling in a flurry of upturned seats and up-turned humanity, not always dignified. But they were ever up and at it again.

When the knockout came a wild shout went up which shook the echoes of the Yankee stadium as they never shook to honor Babe Ruth when he drove a homer with the bases full. The ovation Dempsey got last night made that given Tunney at Philadelphia sound like the twitter of a canary bird.

Listening closely one could hear an undertone of "booes," the favorite New York way of saying "You're all wrong." It was the first dim beginning of the controversy of the year in sporting circles—the question of whether Dempsey hit Sharkey low.

No one thinks Dempsey would foul another man intentionally. He isn't built along those lines. But he was fighting to win and he knew the best attack on Sharkey was on what once was called the solar plexus. He aimed blow after blow in that direction and landed many.

Tex Rickard denied today that Dempsey had fouled Sharkey, and did a little ballyhooing for the Dempsey-Tunney fight which he said would be held in mid-September "at a place not yet determined."

Rickard characterized the Dempsey-Sharkey fight as "the best I ever saw." He said:

"I was right at the ringside. I was watching every minute, and I would have seen a foul blow if one had been struck in the seventh round. No, Dempsey hit Sharkey in the pit of the stomach—right in the pit of the stomach. Sharkey took two blows to the head before he fell. A man would have dropped quicker than that if he had been hit low. He didn't act like a man who had been hit low.

"One time early in the fight I thought Dempsey was hitting low, but that happens in all fights and Sharkey didn't seem to notice it.

"Where Sharkey failed was in not coming right into the fight and mixing it with Dempsey. He waited too long. He did not fight fast enough.

"Dempsey came out fighting all the time. He looked as if he could lick anybody."

"Does that include Tunney?" Rickard was asked.

"Well, he would have a better chance than he did in the Philadelphia fight," the promoter said.

New York, July 22.—The Dempsey-Sharkey fight drew larger receipts than any previous non-championship fight and was exceeded by only two fights for the world boxing title.

The receipts and their distribution were estimated today as follows:

Receipts	$1,100,000
Dempsey's share	250,000
Sharkey's share	215,000
Expense	610,000
Government tax	100,000
State tax	50,000
Profit	340,000

The Dempsey-Tunney fight at Philadelphia last September played to a $2,000,000 house, and the receipts at the Dempsey-Carpentier fight were $1,826,000.

In fight receipts tabulation, fighters' shares are included in the item of $610,000 for expenses and should not be added up separately in computing the total.

ESTELLE TAYLOR WANTS DEMPSEY TO FIGHT TUNNEY

Hollywood, July 22.—(UP)—Estelle Taylor wants her husband, Jack Dempsey, to whip Gene Tunney and retire with the world's heavyweight championship belt in his possession.

Happy over her mate's victory over Jack Sharkey and confident that he will acquiese to her wishes, Miss Taylor rested today following weeks of strain. After hearing the fight over radio last night Miss Taylor was nearly exhausted.

"The strain has been almost too much for me," she told the United Press. "I am glad that he won and that it is all over. I was so worried that Jack might get hurt.

"Now I want him to whip Tunney and retire."

DEMPSEY AND SHARKEY AFTER FIGHT STATEMENTS

DEMPSEY SAYS HE BLOCKED LEVERAGE OF SHARKEY'S BLOWS

SHARKEY BELIEVES HE HAD DEMPSEY GROGGY A DOZEN TIMES

New York, July 22—(UP)—After the fight Jack Dempsey and Jack Sharkey made the following statements:

Dempsey: "Make no mistake about it, this fellow Sharkey is no sucker. He is a tough, rugged young fellow who can hit, and hit hard, but he never had me badly hurt or seriously shaken. Always my head was clear and I had plenty left. You see, I never permitted Sharkey to get so that he could get the best leverage for his blows. He is very quick and it is hard for me to land fairly, but when finally I did get a shot at his chin—and you know the answer."

Sharkey: "It's all in the game, and I'll be back at the top before Dempsey is. Say, that guy couldn't break an egg. His punch is gone, if he ever had a punch. I had him licked, and he knew it, and that's why he fouled me. Dempsey was drunk and groggy a dozen times, while he never was able to feaze me.

"Dempsey knew I had his number from the start and he was hitting low all night. He deliberately hit me in the groin four times just before he clipped me. I was failing from the pain when the last blow brushed my chin. I was not knocked out. I simply doubled up from the pain and could not rise.

"I hope to have the pleasure of meeting that bird in the ring again, but I guess Gene Tunney will beat me to it."

PITTSBURGH DROPS A DOUBLE HEADER TO BOSTON CREW

CHICAGO CUBS APPEARED VERY WEAK BEFORE THE PHILLIES

BUSH STARTED HURLING AND WAS MET BY DELUGE OF BASE HITS

(By United Press)

The Chicago Cubs moved back into first place in the National League even though the Philadelphia Nationals handed them a 7-3 defeat. Key to the leadership came through the fact that Pittsburgh dropped a double header to Boston.

The Cubs appeared very weak before the Phillies. Bush started the hurling but was met by a deluge of base hits in the second and third innings. Jones, who succeeded him, worked effectively until the sixth, when the Phillies added their final two counts.

The Pirates ran into a seemingly rejuvenated team when they met the Braves. Six scintillating double plays are indicative of the brilliancy of the Braves' inner defense that gave them a 2-1 and a 5-2 victory over the Corsairs.

Sergeant George Connally was an effective pitcher for the Chicago White Sox for the first seven innings against the Yankees. He permitted Buster Gehrig to get a looping double and that was the only hit. But in the eighth Lazzeri drove a triple to the outfield. Before the inning was ended the Yankees had four runs and the game ended 4-1 in favor of the New Yorkers.

Devormer tried to nip Jim Bottomley off third base in the tenth inning of the game between the St. Louis Cardinals and the Giants but his toss went to the outfield. This permitted the Cardinal first baseman to score with the run that gave the champions a 7-6 victory.

An error in the thirteenth inning by Herman enabled the Cincinnati Reds to win from Brooklyn, 2-1. Both Doak and Luque pitched near perfect baseball through the first nine innings. Both teams scored in the tenth.

A ninth inning rally that brought in three runs gave the St. Louis Browns a victory in the first game of their double header with Washington. In the second game the count was knotted at 2-2 in the seventh when darkness necessitated cessation of play.

Six errors by the Cleveland Indians permitted the Philadelphia Athletics to score six runs and to finally work out an 8-3 victory. In the first inning Ty Cobb got a life on an error, stole second, loped to third when that base was unprotected and scored when Jacobson made a bad throw in from the outfield.

Lundgren was wild and this enabled Detroit to win its fourth consecutive game, the victory coming over Boston, 7-3.

Kansas City, Mo.—An Indianapolis rally following two bungles by Kansas City players gave the Indians the long end of a 10 to 5 score here. Luther Roy pitched a good game for the Blues, who did not give decent support until too late.

St. Paul.—Six runs in the sixth when bunched hits and errors prevailed, gave St. Paul a 7 to 1 victory over Toledo here. Betts allowed four scattered hits and agonized Toledo in the rally with a two-base hit with two men on.

Minneapolis — Emmer, knocking big 16th homer of the season in the ninth inning with a knotted score, gave Minneapolis a 4 to 3 victory over Columbus. Emmer's homer tied the record of Earl Smith also of Minneapolis, who had been leading the league.

Milwaukee, Wis. — A pitchers' battle between Tincup and Gearin featured the game here when Louisville defeated Milwaukee 4 to 1. The Colonels won in the eighth scoring three runs.

DEMONSTRATION OF DEMPSEY PUNCH IS FATAL TO NOVICE

Philadelphia, July 22.—(UP)—A demonstration of the Dempsey punch combination that defeated Sharkey in New York today resulted in the death of Thomas Cellouicci, 27, and the arrest of his friend, John Derogatis, 20, on a charge of manslaughter.

After hearing a radio account of the battle, the two walked homeward, excitedly discussing the sudden termination of the Dempsey-Sharkey fight.

They stopped on a corner to work out the details.

Cellouicci led with a right to Derogatis' head.

"That's the way Dempsey did it," Derogatis said.

Cellouicci dropped to the pavement and did not arise. Passersby sent Cellouicci to a hospital and Derogatis went to a police station and reported the accident. Cellouicci died this morning and Derogatis was held for manslaughter.

Physicians said the dead youth's skull was fractured when he struck the pavement.

CHARLIE CAPELLA HAS SAVED SIX CHILDREN FROM DROWNING

PULLED THEM OUT OF CANAL IN THE PAST THREE YEARS

Bristo,l Pa., July 22.—(UP) — A movement is underway here for the award of a Carnegie medal to the youngest candidate for that badge of bravery.

The young hero is Charlie Capella, 8-year-old son of a butcher, who in the last three years has rescued six children from drowning in the Delaware and Lehigh canal.

Charlie, between munchings of a "hot dog," admitted he had rescued Frank Green and Mary Muffett, six, from drowning in the canal since Saturday. The names of the other four of his rescues he could not remember.

"Frank Fell off a log in the canal and I hopped in after him," Charlie admitted. "He gave me a scissors about the body and I gave him a sock in the jaw and brought him in," he added.

The saving of Mary was a comparatively simple thing, according to Charlie. "Oh, she just went in over her head and I dove under her and twisted her up so she could get some air and brought her in.

"There was a colored boy and a little Italian girl, and a couple of others a long time ago," he said, "but I can't remember their names.

"These kids make me sick," he added. "What's in pulling a couple of these birds out of the water? I can swim pretty good and it isn't anything."

Frank Green's rescue came to light when Charlie came home with a new pair of shoes. Asked to explain where he got them, he briefly informed that "Mr. Green gave them to me." (Frank's father conducts a shoe store).

"What for?"

"Oh, I puled Frank Green out of the canal today."

Charlie says when he grows up maybe he'll be a life saver or maybe a cartoonist.

Napoleonic "Nap"

The word "nap," used in the sense of "a short sleep," is not of any Anglo-Saxon derivation, as might be supposed; but owes its origin to the fact that Napoleon had the power at any time, in any place, of (so to speak) shutting down all the departments of his brain and going immediately to sleep. Thus a short sleep taken at will became known as a "Napoleon," which in due course was shortened to "nap."

Moisture Held by Soil

PLAN CONSTRUCTION NEW COUNTY GARAGE

Two Propositions to Bid on; One Razing of Old Court House and Using Material

OTHER, NEW MATERIAL

Estimated Cost of Brick Building Placed Between $8,000 and $10,000

With the object in mind of constructing a garage for county highway department use, 50 feet by 70 feet, of brick construction, steel roof, basement and one story, on a location on the court house grounds not yet decided upon but intended for the west side of the county jail, the county commissioners at their meeting this week called for bids on two propositions for the construction.

The first proposition as outlined in the bid is for the tearing down of the old court house and the using of whatever material suitable in the construction of the garage.

The other bid calls for the building of the garage with new material.

Bids will be received at the office of the county auditor up until August 13 at 2 p. m. Specifications may be seen in the county highway engineer's department after August 1.

An estimate of the cost of the new garage which will be used for the storage of county highway trucks, machinery, etc., for the repairing of trucks and equipment during summer and winter months is placed at from $8,000 to $10,000. The building is to be completed before the winter months.

The tearing down and clearing away of all material is estimated to cost approximately $1,500, while the material which can be salvaged, bricks, etc., for use in the proposed new garage is estimated at the same figure.

The county recently completed its last payment on the old court house bonds and it is felt that while the building can not be used the material would be of value in the construction of a garage for which the highway department is in great need of.

ESCAPES FROM CHAINS

Jack O'Day Aided by Wrestling Bear to Put on Show Tonight

Jack O'Day, an ex-service man will put on a one man show tonight at the corner of Seventh and Laurel streets when he will make his escape from an imprisonment of chains and ropes while "Buster, the wrestling bear" will wrestle with a local boy.

The entertainment will start at 7:30 p. m. There will be no charge but a collection will be taken.

Mr. O'Day performed in Brainerd four years ago when he hung in a straight jacket from the roof of the Iron Exchange building and untangled himself.

The performance tonight will last 30 minutes. Mr. O'Day travels in a Chevrolet coupe and carries two bears in cages on the car.

BECK AND WALKER MINSTRELS

Company of 30 People Appeared Last Evening Before Packed Tent

A packed tent last evening greeted the Beck and Walker Minstrels in their only showing in Brainerd last evening on the northwest corner of Fifth and Laurel streets.

The show was a decided improvement to the majority of colored shows to have played in Brainerd this season. Tonight, the company with its entire personnel of 30 people will play at Crosby-Ironton.

Chief among the acts presented last evening was the slack wire walking with rope twirling and cow boy tricks by P. H. Young. Rastus Adams caused much merriment when he placed three billiard balls in his mouth at one time. Lasses Brown who claims to be the originator of the "black bottom," gave a demonstration of the dance as he originally did it and the latest version of it.

10 DAY MUSICAL INSTITUTE

Professor C. O. Blakeslee, New York, to Have Charge; Opening Lecture Monday

A ten day musical institute with Dean C. O. Blakeslee, voice specialist, formerly of New York City in charge, will be conducted in Brainerd starting Monday evening with an opening lecture at the First Congregational church.

Professor Blakeslee states he has made a specialty of lecturing on modern psycho physical culture in a clear and practical manner.

Among other theories expressed by Professor Blakeslee is that the voice is in the blood and must be built up through increasing of magnetism and iron. He claims that this is the key to perpetual youth and the highest efficiency. He will give two introductory lectures Monday and Tuesday evenings at the Congregational and M. E. churches respectively.

Lessons will be given privately and in class for two weeks. Those interested are requested to report at the opening lecture Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR CADET JONES

Will be Held Sunday Morning at 10:45 at First Congregational Church

LOST AT SEA, JULY 3

Members of Roosevelt Chapter De-Molays Will Attend Service in Body

Next Sunday morning at 10:45 o'clock the service at the First Congregational church, Rev. N. P. Olmsted officiating, will be in the nature of a memorial for Henry Lloyd Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Jones, who was lost at sea in English waters during a storm on July 3, and whose body was not recovered. Cadet Jones, a student at the United States Coast Guard Academy at New London, Conn., was on his first voyage on board the training ship Mojave.

He was a member of the First Congregational church of Brainerd, and it is appropriate that this memorial service should be held at the church at the hour of morning worship. He was also a charter member and an officer of Roosevelt Chapter De-Molays, and the members of that organization will attend in a body and conduct a part of the service.

BIDS WANTED

Contracts will be placed for brushing and trenching approximately 4 miles of right of way around our Brainerd-Oak Lawn muskrat ranch on highway No. 2, 10 miles East of Brainerd. We will furnish regular trenching spades for trench 6 inches wide and 12 to 15 inches deep. Brushing must be at least 15 feet wide. We reserve the right to reject any or all bids.

MISSIONARY FROM CHINA

Rev. Joel Johnson of Chicago Served 23 Years in Mission Fields

SPEAKS HERE SUNDAY

Will Deliver Sermon at Special Services at Swedish Bethany Church

Next Sunday at the Swedish Bethany church there will be special services with Rev. Joel Johnson of Chicago as the principal speaker. Rev. Johnson is a returned missionary from China where he served in the mission fields for 23 years. At the last annual meeting of the Swedish Mission Covenant of America, held in Chicago, he was elected secretary of foreign missions. Rev. Johnson is an old school mate of Rev. P G. Fallquist the local pastor and with his son Winston is a guest at the cottage of Rev. and Mrs. Fallquist on Clark Lake.

Rev. Johnson, with his family met with a great deal of difficulty in the war zone of China while making this way to Shanghai harbor after having been called home by the United States government. Previous to leaving the missionary field Rev. Johnson was separated from his family for three months by robber bands who looted their home and was reunited with them at the harbor just before the boat sailed for America.

At 9:45 o'clock the Sunday school meets in regular session. At this service, the missionary and his son, Winston, will sing Chinese songs and Rev. Johnson will give demonstrations in the Chinese language. Winston Johnson, who is 12 years old and a good musician will also give piano selections. The officers of the school urge a 100 percent attendance at this session. Last Sunday the attendance was 85½ percent.

The morning service at 11 o'clock will be in the Swedish language at which time Rev. Johnson will be the speaker.

In the evening at 8 o'clock the topic discussed by Rev. Johnson in the English language will be "China and Its People and the Present Crisis." A hearty invitation is extended to all to attend these services.

RIDING DEVICES AT LUM PARK

Carl Flenk to Operate Ferris Wheel and Merry-Go-Round

ON SATURDAY AND SUNDAY

Roller Coaster Proving Popular, Bathing and Boating Patronized

Carl Flenk of Eagle Bend, who has operated ferris wheels and merry-go-rounds for the past thirty years will appear under the auspices of the Brainerd park board at Lum Park tomorrow and under the auspices of the Odd Fellows at their annual Jericho Outing to be held at Lum Park, Sunday.

After various attempts to secure the services of Mr. Flenk, the park board has been fortunate to receive these two open dates. Mr. Flenk will bring with him both a merry-go-round and ferris wheel for the enjoyment of young and old who may visit the park this week end.

The park board has often considered purchasing a merry-go-round for the youngsters, thinking that it would be an added attraction for the park and feels fortunate in having the riding device here for the benefit of the thousands that are expected for the Jericho Outing.

The park has undergone many improvements this year and is in the best shape that it has even been for an immense outing of this kind. The huge roller coaster is proving more popular as time goes along and bathers never tire of the excellent beach and boating facilities.

The grounds are clean and tables and benches are in good repair. Picnic parties are in evidence every day and Sunday always finds an exceptionally large quota taking advantage of the parks recreational advantages.

PLAN CONSTRUCTION NEW COUNTY GARAGE

Two Propositions to Bid on; One Razing of Old Court House and Using Material

OTHER, NEW MATERIAL

Estimated Cost of Brick Building Placed Between $8,000 and $10,000

With the object in mind of constructing a garage for county highway department use, 50 feet by 70 feet, of brick construction, steel roof, basement and one story, on a location on the court house grounds not yet decided upon but intended for the west side of the county jail, the county commissioners at their meeting this week called for bids on two propositions for the construction.

The first proposition as outlined in the bid is for the tearing down of the old court house and the using of whatever material suitable in the construction of the garage.

The other bid calls for the building of the garage with new material.

Bids will be received at the office of the county auditor up until August 13 at 2 p. m. Specifications may be seen in the county highway engineer's department after August 1.

An estimate of the cost of the new garage which will be used for the storage of county highway trucks, machinery, etc., for the repairing of trucks and equipment during summer and winter months is placed at from $8,000 to $10,000. The building is to be completed before the winter months.

The tearing down and clearing away of all material is estimated to cost approximately $1,500, while the material which can be salvaged, bricks, etc., for use in the proposed new garage is estimated at the same figure.

The county recently completed its last payment on the old court house bonds and it is felt that while the building can not be used the material would be of value in the construction of a garage for which the highway department is in great need of.

ESCAPES FROM CHAINS

Jack O'Day Aided by Wrestling Bear to Put on Show Tonight

Jack O'Day, an ex-service man will put on a one man show tonight at the corner of Seventh and Laurel streets when he will make his escape from an imprisonment of chains and ropes while "Buster, the wrestling bear" will wrestle with a local boy.

The entertainment will start at 7:30 p. m. There will be no charge but a collection will be taken.

Mr. O'Day performed in Brainerd four years ago when he hung in a straight jacket from the roof of the Iron Exchange building and untangled himself.

The performance tonight will last 30 minutes. Mr. O'Day travels in a Chevrolet coupe and carries two bears in cages on the car.

BECK AND WALKER MINSTRELS

Company of 30 People Appeared Last Evening Before Packed Tent

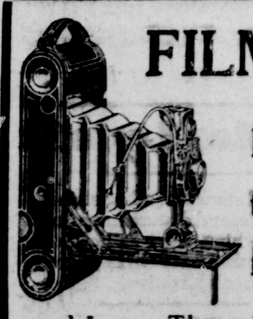

A packed tent last evening greeted the Beck and Walker Minstrels in their only showing in Brainerd last evening on the northwest corner of Fifth and Laurel streets.

The show was a decided improvement to the majority of colored shows to have played in Brainerd this season. Tonight, the company with its entire personnel of 30 people will play at Crosby-Ironton.

Chief among the acts presented last evening was the slack wire walking with rope twirling and cow boy tricks by P. H. Young. Rastus Adams caused much merriment when he placed three billiard balls in his mouth at one time. Lasses Brown who claims to be the originator of the "black bottom," gave a demonstration of the dance as he originally did it and the latest version of it.

10 DAY MUSICAL INSTITUTE

Professor C. O. Blakeslee, New York, to Have Charge; Opening Lecture Monday

A ten day musical institute with Dean C. O. Blakeslee, voice specialist, formerly of New York City in charge will be conducted in Brainerd starting Monday evening with an opening lecture at the First Congregational church.

Professor Blakeslee states he has made a specialty of lecturing on modern psycho physical culture in a clear and practical manner.

Among other theories expressed by Professor Blakeslee is that the voice is in the blood and must be built up through increasing of magnetism and iron. He claims that this is the key to perpetual youth and the highest efficiency. He will give two introductory lectures Monday and Tuesday evenings at the Congregational and M. E. churches respectively.

Lessons will be given privately and in class for two weeks. Those interested are requested to report at the opening lecture Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

SLOW MOTION PICTURES OF FIGHT SHOWN

DIFFERENCE OF OPINION OF THE SPECTATORS AS TO FOUL BLOWS

TEX RICKARD DID NOT THINK IT WAS LOW HITTING

By PAUL W. WHITE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, July 22.—Slow motion pictures of the Dempsey-Sharkey fight, exhibited privately to newspapermen and others today left the issue of whether Dempsey fouled Sharkey as wide open to dispute as ever.

The fifty persons who saw the first running of the pictures were sharply divided in their opinions, as sharply as were those at the ringside last night.

To this observer, as far as his eyes could discern, it seemed that Dempsey struck Sharkey on the groin twice during the seventh round. It looked like two foul blows. Others present saw the pictures differently.

Tex Rickard, one of the observers, said:

"I don't think it was low hitting. It looked to me as though the blows were right in the pit of the stomach."

Rickard, however, seemed to indicate that he had not formed an absolute judgment when he added:

"I'd like to see the pictures run through again."

Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager, however, was loudly indignant when he had seen the film.

"There's no doubt about it; Sharkey was fouled," he exclaimed. "I'm willing to submit these pictures to an impartial committee of persons who did not see the fight and abide by their judgment."

The film was shown at the offices of Goodart Pictures Inc. In addition to Rickard and Buckley, the spectators included newspapermen and movie exhibitors.

The pictures were run through first at normal speed and then at slow speed.

During the first six rounds, it did not seem to the United Press correspondent that Dempsey was striking low, as has been claimed by some at the ringside. He was, however, pounding away at Sharkey's middle, drumming a steady tattoo against his stomach and ribs.

In the seventh round, the first of the disputed blows was shown fairly clear. Sharkey was facing the camera and he and Dempsey came together, swapping punches. It seemed that Dempsey reached out with his left and drove it into Sharkey's groin.

A few seconds later they came together again and almost the same thing happened. Sharkey's hands were at his sides. When he was hit, he looked up plainly in protest. His face, however, did not show pain. Then, almost instantly, came the left to the jaw which floored him.

SLOW MOTION PICTURES OF FIGHT SHOWN

DIFFERENCE OF OPINION OF THE SPECTATORS AS TO FOUL BLOWS

TEX RICKARD DID NOT THINK IT WAS LOW HITTING

By PAUL W. WHITE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, July 22.—Slow motion pictures of the Dempsey-Sharkey fight, exhibited privately to newspapermen and others today left the issue of whether Dempsey fouled Sharkey as wide open to dispute as ever.

The fifty persons who saw the first running of the pictures were sharply divided in their opinions, as sharply as were those at the ringside last night.

To this observer, as far as his eyes could discern, it seemed that Dempsey struck Sharkey on the groin twice during the seventh round. It looked like two foul blows. Others present saw the pictures differently.

Tex Rickard, one of the observers, said:

"I don't think it was low hitting. It looked to me as though the blows were right in the pit of the stomach."

Rickard, however, seemed to indicate that he had not formed an absolute judgment when he added:

"I'd like to see the pictures run through again."

Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager, however, was loudly indignant when he had seen the film.

"There's no doubt about it; Sharkey was fouled," he exclaimed. "I'm willing to submit these pictures to an impartial committee of persons who did not see the fight and abide by their judgment."

The film was shown at the offices of Goodart Pictures Inc. In addition to Rickard and Buckley, the spectators included newspapermen and movie exhibitors.

The pictures were run through first at normal speed and then at slow speed.

During the first six rounds, it did not seem to the United Press correspondent that Dempsey was striking low, as has been claimed by some at the ringside. He was, however, pounding away at Sharkey's middle, drumming a steady tattoo against his stomach and ribs.

In the seventh round, the first of the disputed blows was shown fairly clear. Sharkey was facing the camera and he and Dempsey came together, swapping punches. It seemed that Dempsey reached out with his left and drove it into Sharkey's groin.

A few seconds later they came together again and almost the same thing happened. Sharkey's hands were at his sides. When he was hit, he looked up plainly in protest. His face, however, did not show pain. Then, almost instantly, came the left to the jaw which floored him.

Football in Commons

In the British house of commons is probably the last place in which one would expect to find a football; but one was to be seen there recently. The ball was used in the match between Wales and Scotland at Cardiff. It was brought to the house to be autographed and sold for the Cardiff Royal Infirmary.

GROUNDS IN SHAPE FOR TOURIST PLAY SUNDAY AT B. C. C.

The grounds at the Brainerd Country club are in fine shape for the tourist tournament to be held at the club course Sunday afternoon starting at 1:30 o'clock. The rough is being cut down at the present time by the ground keeper for the Sunday event.

Tourists are requested to be at the club house before time of play to register. In case of rain the tournament will be postponed to an early date, and will be announced in Monday's edition.
